Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building,
WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—A vivid description of the shooting of Senator Huey P. Long was telephoned to the Post-Dispatch's Washington bureau last night by Earl Christenberry, Long's secretary. It differs in some respects from the accounts contained in earlier news dispatches and is more detailed. The shooting occurred on what is called the "first floor" of the 33-story Capitol, although this floor actually is one story above the ground.

"The Senator," Christenberry related, "had left the chamber where the House was in special session, and had gone to Gov. Allen's office.
He remained there only a few minutes. When he emerged into the corridor he was in conversation with Justice John B. Fournet of the Louisiana Supreme Court. About half a dozen of the bodyguards, including Murphy Roden, were a step behind them. You know how the Senator is always getting out in front of them.

Pistol Hidden Under Hat.
"He stopped for just a couple of seconds to shake hands with two or three friends, and then started to walk on. This Dr. Weiss was leaning against a wall of the corridor. He wore a white linen suit.
He was holding his hat against his chest. As the Senator came abreast of him, Weiss suddenly stepped out and stuck the pistol, which he had concealed under his hat, against the Senator's body. He evidently was aiming at the heart.

"Justice Fournet struck Weiss' arm down, and as he did the gun went off. The Judge had acted very quickly, and his blow deflected the shot to some extent, but not enough to make Weiss miss.
Guard Shoots Assassin.
"Murphy Roden was on top of Weiss like a panther. With his left hand he grabbed the breech of Weiss' automatic, and jammed it and with his right hand he pulled his own automatic and let Weiss have it five times right through the body. He backed away a step as he was firing.
"Weiss pitched forward, and, in a sort of convulsive movement, threw his arms around Roden, and they both fell to the floor. Weiss was practically dead then, but of course the boys didn't know that,
and as Roden scrambled to his feet and backed away, reaching for his other gun, they all opened up. It sounded like the Battle of the Argonne. He twitched a little as they pounded the lead into him, but I think he was beyond feeling anything.
"It all happened very quickly, but even before the shooting was over, the Senator had staggered along the corridor and down the stairs to the ground floor, holding his side."

He had been associated with his father, also an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist.
Several unidentified men prevented news photographers from taking pictures of the family at the funeral.

Pictures Destroyed.
After snapping pictures at the funeral home where the body was taken after Dr. Weiss was shot down by Long's bodyguards Sunday night, the photographers accompanied the funeral procession to St.
Joseph's Church. As a half-dozen news photographers poised their cameras, several men grasped L. I.
Chance, Associated Press photographer, smashed his flash bulb, tore the battery box from the instrument and destroyed the plates.
Simultaneously another group caught O. J. Valetton, photographer for the New Orleans Times-Picayune, wrested several plates from his pockets and stamped them on the sidewalk. The street photographers were not molested.

Witnesses Fail to Appear.
An unfinished inquest into Dr.
Weiss' death was held up when only two of the called witnesses appeared yesterday. It had been expected that some of the guards who shot down Weiss would testify.
Sheriff Robert Pettit said he would ask Gen. L. F. Guere, superintendent of the State Bureau of Identification and Investigation, to order the men to report. He added that if Gen. Guere declined to summon them he would be powerless to act, as one of Senator Long's laws had given the administration of Pettit's deputies to the State.
Dr. Thomas Bird, parish coroner, said he would have to close the inquest if the witnesses did not appear.

LEADERSHIP OF LONG'S MACHINE UNCERTAIN

None of Six Lieutenants of Senator Overshadowed the Others.

By the Associated Press.
NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 10.—The death of Senator Huey P. Long has left his powerful political machine without a leader. Politically, Louisiana was in a whirlpool today. It has no direction.
Huey Long left a half dozen lieutenants. None overshadowed the others. If one tried to step ahead there was danger of intersecting warfare.

Normally the high man would be
Gov. O. K. Allen but during his entire political career he has leaned heavily on Huey Long, who was a friend from the barefoot boy stage in Winn Parish. Today Gov. Allen was so broken up over his friend's death that he was unapproachable.
Lieutenants in Conference.
Before the Senator's death, but after it was known that he would die, his political lieutenants held conferences on what steps to take.
In them were Gov. Allen, Seymour
Weiss, Long political treasurer; Abe Shusans, director of the New Orleans Levee Board; Lieut. Gov.
James A. Noe, Allen's lieutenant;
Speaker of the House, George Wallace, legislative adviser to the Senator, and others.

On one of these six the chances are the leadership will fall, but that will be determined in faction caucus whether any one of these can hold the reins remains to be seen.
There was only one Huey Long.
The death of Senator Long also aroused the anti-Long politicians.
They are out to catch up any political material that may drift away from the Long camp.
The death may reunite the old regulars in New Orleans headed by Mayor T. Semmes Walmaley, most of whose followers deserted to the ranks of Senator Long after the Legislature had driven the city into virtual bankruptcy. Huey Long did just as he was driving through measures that would restore revenue to New Orleans after the Old Regulars had capitulated.

Preparation for Election.
Senator Long's death came at an embarrassing time for his machine,
as he was grasping the mechanism for an election in January that would include his candidacy for re-election to the United States Senate, the election of Congressmen,
Governor and other state officers.
He had announced he would defeat his opponents for re-election to the House of Representatives and that he would sweep his entire slate into office.

Maybe he would, as he had done before, but there is none left in his organization who can drive as swiftly and as cunningly as the Senator could in the saddle. His death gave great courage to his political opponents, who were split into several factions, one reason for Huey Long's ascent to power.
There was talk Gov. Allen would resign the governorship and accept appointment from Noe as United States Senator, but Allen said last night that when his term as Governor expires next spring he would retire to private life and never again accept office.

Nothing in the direction of reorganization of the Long machine was expected until after the Senator's funeral.

Five Killed in Street Car Crash.
PADUA, Italy, Sept. 10.—Five persons were killed and injured today in a street car collision on the Padua-Venice line.

Long's Last Thoughts Of Family and New Book

side, but too late for the Senator to recognize them.
The secretary said there were last wishes expressed by the Senator. He would not divulge them because he said they concerned
the family and were private.
Mrs. Jack Ducournau, a niece, gave another version of the Senator's last act before he lost consciousness. He sent for Mrs. Long, who had left the room, she said,
and as she walked in, he exclaimed: "Here comes my sweetheart, where are all the children?
I love all of you."

Gov. Allen, who was tearful as he emerged from the death chamber, said the Senator wondered "what will happen to my poor university boys." The Senator made himself the particular patron of the football team of the University of Louisiana.
"I Want to Live."
Fighting determinedly, Long also told Seymour Weiss, a close friend and confidant, to take care of his political machine. He said: "I want to live."

At the bedside besides Mrs. Long and the children, Gov. Allen and Christenberry, were the Senator's sisters, Mrs. W. M. Knott and Mrs.
Stewart Hunt, and their husbands, his brothers, Dr. G. S. Long, Julius and Earl, and the latter's wife; his father, Dr. Roy Long, and several cousins.
The fifth blood transfusion which the physicians attempted to administer to Senator Long never was completed. At 3 a. m., Dr. E. L.
Sanderson announced there no longer was any hope. "He is dying," he said.
"We have done everything in the world we could for him," Dr. Sanderson said.

Gov. Allen made the official death announcement. His voice was husky and barely audible.
"This marks with the death of Huey P. Long the passing of the greatest builder of economies in the history of Louisiana in 225 years," he said. "It also marks with the death of Huey P. Long the passing of the greatest hero for the common right of all the people of America."

While Long and his physicians fought for his life, the roads around the hospital were barred by troops and police who swarmed over all the highways, a multiplication of the guard which failed to save him in the Statehouse.
Tense Night Vigil.
It was a tense night vigil about the hospital as Long's strength ebbed. Traffic was diverted. Unless visitors had special permits they had no chance to get through the heavy guard and to the hospital. The doctors, for the most part, were close-mouthed about the struggle.
Now and then an attendant or a nurse dropped a word to indicate how things were going. The first real alarm among the watchers came at 7 p. m., when a serious sinking spell was reported unofficially. Up to that time not even the necessity for a second blood transfusion at noon yesterday could be disclosed.

Surgeon Describes Mikulicz Operation Performed on Long.
The operation performed on Senator Long, as explained by a St.
Louis surgeon to whom the news accounts were the first step toward resection of the colon by a method known professionally as the Mikulicz operation. The perforated section was cut out and the severed ends clamped, pending a second operation for rejoining them whenever Senator Long's condition permitted. Resection or excision of the injured part and rejoining the ends is sometimes completed in one operation, but apparently this was precluded by the low state of the Senator's vitality, due to shock and loss of blood.

ATTENDING PHYSICIAN TELLS OF LONG'S FIGHT

"Losing From Start"—"Life Passed Like Snuffing of Candle," He Says.

By the Associated Press.
BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 10.—
Dr. E. L. Sanderson, superintendent of the Shreveport charity hospital and one of the physicians in attendance on Senator Huey P. Long, gave the Associated Press the following account of Long's battle for life.
"I happened to be one of the physicians to care for Senator Long."
"I saw a fight for life which was a losing one from the beginning but which was so heroic on the part of Senator Long that none of us can ever forget it."

"He was conscious during the first hours except during the period of rest produced by narcotics.
During his periods of wakefulness
he made some remarks which perhaps he did not forget in Louisiana during this generation.
"Once he referred to the Louisiana State University when he said:
'What will the boys and girls do
if I should die?'"

"Several times he asked us how long he would be in the hospital and always made the same remark that, 'The time doesn't count just so I am assured that I will recover.'"

"When his wife entered the room
a few hours before death he said:
'Here is my sweetheart.'"
"As she stooped over to kiss him
it was about this time that he said:
'Oh, Lord, don't let me die for I have a few more things to accomplish.'"

"I really believe his last words were those pertaining to the L. S.
U. school. He may have made some incoherent remarks later. At no time did he show any shrinking from the pain or any fear of death.
"When he passed away it was like the snuffing out of a candle.
There was no struggle whatever."
"It was the unanimous opinion of all the physicians in attendance that the cause of death was shock and loss of blood due to gunshot wound in the abdomen."
"One of the things agreed on by the beginning was that there would be no overtreatment. He was given the same careful treatment anyone else would have been given."

PUBLIC UTILITY VALUES CUT SLIGHTLY FOR STATE TAXATION

Companies in Missouri Assessed at $432,618,558 in Commission Recommendation.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 10.—
An assessed valuation of $432,618,558 for that part of the property of public utility companies directly assessed by the State was recommended today by the State Tax Commission, for 1935 taxes. In a report to the State Board of Equalization. This is a reduction of $3-821,433, or four-fifths of one per cent from the valuation fixed by the State Board for 1934 taxes.
The Tax Commission recommendation is subject to revision by the State Board of Equalization. The total does not include real estate, buildings, material and supplies, bank deposits and certain other items of property which are assessed locally. Hearings on the recommendations will be held by the State Board of Equalization from Sept. 16 to Sept. 21.

COLLEEN MOORE IN HOSPITAL AFTER FALL IN HOTEL ROOM

Old Injury to Neck Aggravated, Actress Wears Cast as Precautionary Measure.
Colleen Moore, motion picture actress, aggravated an old injury to her neck yesterday when she tripped over furniture in her room at Hotel Statler and fell. She was taken to Jewish hospital, where X-ray photographs were made and a cast placed about her neck.
Miss Moore, who has been in St.
Louis in connection with an exhibition of her old house in the interests of crippled children, fractured her neck about seven years ago while making a picture in California. She was thrown from a railroad handcar and her neck struck a rail.
She will wear the cast until Friday as a precautionary measure.
The injury was not considered serious and she was permitted to return to the hotel.

PROHIBITION ENDS IN TEXAS

Official Canvass Shows 297,597 for Repeal, 250,948 Against.
By the Associated Press.
AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 10.—Statewide prohibition ended in Texas yesterday with issuance of a proclamation by Gov. Alfred declaring results of the Aug. 24 election. The official canvass showed the vote was 297,597 to 250,948 for repeal.
Sale of intoxicating liquor became legal immediately on issuance of the proclamation in 12 counties and was legal in one or more political subdivisions of 50 additional counties.

DR. E. T. SENSESEY HURT IN FALL IN ELEVATOR SHAFT

Arm and Hip Broken in Accident
That Occurred in Office Building, Sept. 1.

Dr. E. T. Sensesey, 4555 Pershing avenue, is recovering at Missouri Baptist Hospital from a broken arm and hip, suffered Sept. 1, in a fall down the elevator shaft at the Lister Building, 4500 Olive street, where he has his offices.
He had gone to the building on a Sunday to get fishing equipment from his office for a Labor Day outing. Using a key at the first floor, provided to tenants of the building, he opened the doors at the shaft and reached in to turn on the lights of the elevator, supposing it to be there. He lost his balance and fell to the basement, a distance of about 16 feet.

BROTHERS AT LONG'S BEDSIDE

Differed Over Politics, One Calling Him Political "Madman."
BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 10.—
The death bed of Huey Long brought together for the first time in years the four Long brothers, who at times differed bitterly over politics and personal affairs.
Julius Long, oldest brother, lent
Huey funds to get his law education and became his law partner in Huey's early days. In recent years Julius and Huey broke off all relations, Julius branding Huey a political "madman." Julius even testified before the Senate Investigating Committee against his brother.
Earl Long, youngest brother, in recent months had been reunited with Huey in his politics
after several years' separation. Dr.
George S. Long, a second brother, journeyed from Oklahoma. George had been an admirer of his brother, although Huey had refused to aid him in his campaigns for office in Oklahoma.

SENATOR OVERTON ON LONG

By the Associated Press.
ALEXANDRIA, La., Sept. 10.—
From his home where he is still convalescing from a severe il-
ness, Senator John H. Overton,
longtime personal and political friend
of the late Senator Long, gave out
the following statement: "The death
of Senator Long is regrettable beyond measure, and his assassination cannot be too severely investigated. It has deprived Louisiana of the most brilliant official in all its history, the nation of its most spectacular public figure and its
most powerful independent political factor, and has taken from the poor
and oppressed their best friend."

KSD WILL BROADCAST BOND ELECTION RETURNS

RETURNS of the $750,000
river front memorial bond election will be broadcast tonight by the Post-Dispatch radio station, KSD. The returns will be sent out as received from Election Board
headquarters, where canvassers
make the tabulation for the newspapers.
In recapping the figures, it is
to be remembered that the third vote, two yes ballots to
one no, is needed for success
of the bond issue proposal.
The radio bulletins will include the $500,000 Municipal Bridge approach proposal also requiring a two-thirds vote to carry.

SUIT TO DISBAR TWO LAWYERS ON BARRATRY CHARGE

Otis M. Gallant and Marion J. Hannigan Charged With Soliciting Personal Injury Claims.

39 ACTIONS AGAINST CEMENT FIRMS CITED

Employment of Runners and Division of Fees With Them Alleged in Complaint.

A disbarment suit against Otis M.
Gallant and Marion J. Hannigan was filed in the St. Louis Court of Appeals yesterday by the Advisory Committee to Boyle G. Clark of Columbia, general chairman of the State Bar Committee.

Gallant and Hannigan were charged in three counts with conspiring to practice law unethically in the solicitation of personal injury damage claims against corporations.

The first count alleged that they became common barrators in inciting litigation since 1933, chiefly in the Tenth Judicial Circuit (Marion, Monroe and Ralls counties), but also in other Missouri circuits. It was alleged that they agreed with their clients to pay costs and expenses of prosecuting the claims or suits, and costs of medical examinations, and that they advanced money and benefits to the clients.
Fifty-seven persons were named in the complaint as having made claims against their former employers through Gallant and Hannigan.
Of these, 28 were said to have been employed by the Missouri Portland Cement Co., 11 by the Universal Atlas Cement Co. and the remaining 18 by employers unknown to the committee.

Use of Runners Alleged.

The second count charged the two lawyers paid agents and runners to solicit claims. Twelve such alleged agents were named, including Sidney Gallant, brother of Otis Gallant.
Unlawful and unethical division of fees with persons not licensed to practice law, among them the 12 alleged agents, previously by the committee, was the charge in the third count. These alleged practices, the petition stated, were "in violation of the oath of office of the accused as attorneys at law, and that by reason thereof the accused have been guilty of professional misconduct, malpractice, fraud, deceit and misconduct in their professional capacity, and should be disbarred as licensed lawyers of the State of Missouri."

Formal Hearing Held.

The committee said it held a formal hearing in St. Louis of complaint against Gallant and Hannigan, after notice to them, in accordance with rules of the Missouri Supreme Court permitting it to act in lieu of the Tenth or any other Circuit Bar Committee.
Members of the Advisory Committee, of which Clark is ex-officio chairman, are Grover C. Sibley of St. Louis, John C. Grover, Kansas
City; James A. Parks, Clinton; J.
D. Jamar, Joplin, and Morris E.
Osburn, Shelbyville.
The telephone directory lists Gallant and Hannigan as having law offices at 722 Chestnut street. It gives Gallant's residence as 4915 Lincoln boulevard, and Hannigan's as 1402 Summit avenue, East St. Louis.
It was understood, however, that Gallant had told the Advisory Committee he had gone to Chicago recently and opened a law office there.

SENATOR OVERTON ON LONG

By the Associated Press.
ALEXANDRIA, La., Sept. 10.—
From his home where he is still convalescing from a severe il-
ness, Senator John H. Overton,
longtime personal and political friend
of the late Senator Long, gave out
the following statement: "The death
of Senator Long is regrettable beyond measure, and his assassination cannot be too severely investigated. It has deprived Louisiana
of the most brilliant official in all its history, the nation of its most
spectacular public figure and its
most powerful independent political
factor, and has taken from the poor
and oppressed their best friend."

KSD WILL BROADCAST BOND ELECTION RETURNS

RETURNS of the $750,000
river front memorial bond
election will be broadcast tonight by the Post-Dispatch radio station, KSD. The
returns will be sent out as received from Election Board
headquarters, where canvassers
make the tabulation for the
newspapers.
In recapping the figures, it is
to be remembered that the
third vote, two yes ballots to
one no, is needed for success
of the bond issue proposal.
The radio bulletins will include the $500,000 Municipal Bridge approach proposal also requiring a two-thirds vote to
carry.

LONG'S 'CABINET' AS HE IMAGINED IT IN BOOK

Roosevelt, Hoover and Smith Included, in "My First Days in White House."

Special in the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Senator Huey P. Long completed a book, "My First Days in the White House," a short time before he was shot, it was learned today.

The Senator assumes in the book that he has been elected President in the 1936 election. He names a Cabinet and relates in detail his activities as President. His Cabinet appointments include President Franklin D. Roosevelt as Secretary of the Navy and former President Herbert Hoover as Secretary of Commerce.

The book was scheduled to reach bookshelves Sept. 20. It is being published by the Harrisburg (Pa.) Telegraph Publishing Co.

BORAH AND COUSINS

Other Cabinet members, named by Long in the book, are: Secretary of State, Senator William E. Borah of Idaho; Secretary of the Treasury, Senator James Couzens of Michigan; Secretary of War, Gen. Smedley D. Butler of Pennsylvania; Attorney-General, Frank Murphy of Michigan (now Governor-General of the Philippines); Secretary of Interior, Major-General Lytle Brown of Tennessee; Secretary of Labor, Edward Keating of Colorado.

Long did not name a Secretary of Agriculture, writing that he would appoint the man chosen by the farm organizations. He named a Postmaster-General from the regular postal service. He named former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York as Director of the Budget and elevated the post to Cabinet rank.

In one chapter, a group of New York financiers, headed by John D. Rockefeller Jr. and Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National Bank, help draft a plan for a redistribution of wealth.

Tells of 'Appointments'

In the book Long describes the appointment of Smith to the Cabinet as a long conversation and then continues:

"As Smith left, Senator Couzens was ushered into my study. He greeted me.

"Well, Huey," he said, "I see you're raising as much hell as you're running."

"He soon made me realize that he feared the possibility of disharmony in a Cabinet of so many strong-minded men."

"For instance," he asked, "How can Smith and Roosevelt work together? How about Borah and Hoover?"

"What do I care whether they agree with one another?" I asked. "Let Smith run the Senate."

"He will run the Commerce Department to a queen's taste. He will do a mighty fine job there, you'll see. And why should Borah quarrel with Hoover over how Hoover runs the Commerce Department, any more than Hoover will quarrel with Borah about how Borah runs the State Department?"

SUIT TO DISBAR TWO LAWYERS ON BARRATRY CHARGE

Otis M. Gallant and Marion J. Hannigan Charged With Soliciting Personal Injury Claims.

39 ACTIONS AGAINST CEMENT FIRMS CITED

Employment of Runners and Division of Fees With Them Alleged in Complaint.

A disbarment suit against Otis M. Gallant and Marion J. Hannigan on charges of professional misconduct was filed in the St. Louis Court of Appeals yesterday by the Advisory Committee to Boyle G. Clark of Columbia, general chairman of the State Bar Committee.

Gallant and Hannigan were charged in three counts with conspiring to practice law unethically by the solicitation of personal injury damage claims against corporations.

The first count alleged that they became common barrators in inciting litigation since 1933, chiefly in the Ninth Judicial Circuit (Marion, Monroe and Ralls counties), but also in other Missouri circuits. It was alleged that they agreed with their clients to pay costs and expenses of prosecuting the claims of suits, and costs of medical examinations, and that they advanced money and benefits to the clients.

Fifty-seven persons were named in the petition as having made claims against their former employers through Gallant and Hannigan. Of these, 28 were said to have been employed by the Missouri Portland Cement Co., 11 by the Universal Atlas Cement Co., and the remaining 18 by employers unknown to the committee.

Use of Runners Alleged. The second count charged the two lawyers paid agents and runners to solicit claims. Twelve such alleged agents were named, including Sidney Gallant, brother of Otis Gallant.

Unlawful and unethical division of fees with persons not licensed to practice law, among them the 12 alleged agents, was named as the charge in the third count.

These alleged practices, the petition stated, were "in violation of the oath of office of the accused as members of the bar of Missouri and their duty as practicing lawyers in this State, and that by reason thereof the accused have been guilty of professional misconduct, malpractice, fraud, deceit and misrepresentation in their professional capacity and should be disbarred as licensed lawyers of the State of Missouri."

Formal Hearing Held. The committee said it held a formal hearing in St. Louis of complaint against Gallant and Hannigan, after notice to them, in accordance with rules of the Missouri Supreme Court permitting it to act in such matters, or any other Circuit Bar Committee.

Members of the Advisory Committee, of which Clark is ex-officio chairman, are Grover C. Sibley of St. Louis, John C. Grover, Kansas City; James A. Parker, Clinton; D. James, Joplin, and Morris E. Osburn, Shelbyville. The telephone directory lists Gallant and Hannigan as having law offices at 722 Chestnut street. It gives Gallant's residence as 4915 Lindell boulevard and Hannigan's as 1402 Summit avenue, East St. Louis. It was understood, however, that Gallant had told the Advisory Committee he had gone to Chicago recently and opened a law office there.

Senator Overton on Long. By the Associated Press. ALEXANDRIA, La., Sept. 10.—From his home here where he is still convalescing from a severe illness, Senator John H. Overton, whose personal and political friends at the late Senator Long, gave out the following statement: "The death of Senator Long is regrettable beyond measure, and his assassination cannot be too severely investigated. It has deprived Louisiana of the most brilliant official in all its history, the nation of its most spectacular public figure and its most powerful independent political factor, and has taken from the poor and oppressed their best friend."

difficult to say just what view a jury would take of the disputed questions of fact in the event of a trial, after it had heard the detailed evidence on both sides.

Acceptance of Offer.

"I may say frankly that the views of all of those in the Department of Justice familiar with the case, including the United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Missouri, have not been entirely in accord. However, the Attorney General, on Aug. 26, 1935, made a conditional acceptance of the offer. "The reasons which impelled the acceptance—and this acceptance was based upon recommendations to him of a substantial majority of those in the department who were familiar with the case—were in substance as follows:

"In the first place, it was recognized that if the transaction had actually been carried through in the first instance as a loan and option agreement, to be exercised after the merger took place, there would not in any event be a tax. If the contention of the defendant is correct, that the contract of May 17, 1929, was prepared on that day, and reflected the changed character of the transaction as actually changed by the parties at that time, then there would be a serious question whether a tax actually accrued.

"The defendants have gone one step further in their contentions, and have argued that they had a perfect right even after the transaction was concluded to rescind it and enter into a new form of transaction without incurring tax liability, provided it was all done within the current taxable year. The reported tax cases throw but little light on the income tax cases, if this contention of the right to rescind during the same taxable year.

Rulings by Courts.

"Under the definitions of willfulness, however, as laid down by the courts in income tax cases, if the defendants reasonably believed that they had a right to rescind the transaction during the taxable year and enter into a new character of transaction involving the same subject matter, then there is strong doubt as to whether a conviction could properly be had.

"Another matter which caused some earnest consideration of the offer was the fact that during the whole period of time from the beginning of the negotiations there was in the background the proposal for a merger or consolidation, and it is argued by the defendants that in all of the dealings in the transaction, the relationship was that of a parent and son, the taking, title to something out of one member of the family and putting it in another. The department has recognized that reorganization questions and questions involving consolidated returns and affiliations have always been troublesome ones and that the law was even less settled in these matters in 1929 than it is now. In the consideration of the offer it was feared that the reorganization and affiliation issues might cause considerable confusion to a jury."

Good Character Cited.

The statement continued with a reference to the good character and reputation of all of the defendants. Several of them, it added, simply carried out instructions which were given to them, and possibly were not aware of any fraud, if any existed.

A further factor, the statement added, was that the settlement would leave the Government in possession of $349,532, without any

HULLVERSON ATTACKS SUIT TO DISBAR HIM

Challenges, in Supreme Court, the Legal Authority of Bar Committee.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 10.—Legal authority of the Bar Committee of the Eighth (St. Louis) Judicial Circuit to file disbarment proceedings against Everett J. Hullverson, St. Louis attorney who has specialized in silicosis damage suits, and three of his associates, was challenged in an answer to the proceedings, filed today in the Missouri Supreme Court.

The disbarment suit was filed last July under new rules adopted by the Supreme Court, effective last Nov. 1, for regulation of the practice of law and disciplining of attorneys guilty of unethical or unprofessional conduct. The suit charged Hullverson, Eugene J. Schmick, Robert L. Pribble and Francis O. Curran, all of St. Louis, with having conspired to engage in unethical and unprofessional practice of law.

The answer charges the bar committee, appointed by the court, did not have "legal capacity to institute or maintain this proceeding."

It declared the alleged offenses mentioned in the nine counts of the proceeding occurred prior to the adoption and effective date of the new rules adopted by the court. It was asserted these rules could not have a retroactive effect and could not apply to the alleged offenses.

The answer charges the bar committee, appointed by the court, did not have "legal capacity to institute or maintain this proceeding."

Charges in the disbarment petition were barred by the statute of limitations, limiting the period in which charges may be filed, it was asserted.

The four defendants denied all of the charges in the petition and denied entering into any conspiracy to engage in unethical or unprofessional practice of law. The charges included alleged solicitation of damage suits, employment of agents and runners to solicit law business, and the use of persons who were not attorneys, instruction of clients to feign illness, acceptance of employment to prosecute claims alleged to be based on fictitious allegations, and representations that certain persons were attorneys.

Included in the answer was a motion asking the Supreme Court to require the committee to make counts more specific and certain. It was charged the allegations in the petition were so "indefinite and uncertain" as not to advise the defendants of the charges against them.

Proceedings of the bar committee in conducting an investigation and hearing, prior to filing of the formal disbarment petition, were attacked in the answer. It was asserted that no competent or legal evidence was offered in the hearing, in support of the first eight counts, and that the bar committee acted on these counts without notice to the defendants and without affording them an opportunity to cross-examine witnesses. The defendants declared they offered testimony, from numerous witnesses, to refute the ninth count.

It was asserted the nine counts were not properly joined, under the law. The first eight counts included Schmick and Curran as respondents, it was said, but they were not named in the ninth count, which was directed only against Hullverson and Pribble.

Constitutional grounds were raised in the answer, in allegations that the proceeding would deprive the defendants of their reputations, professional standing and property, without due process of law, and that they were being denied equal protection of the laws.

The answer was filed by Montague Lyon Behr and the law firm of Cullen, Fauntleroy & Edwards, as attorneys for the defendants.

Beast Snaps When He Reaches for Sweets to Get It to Pose for Snapshot.

Mike Kostial, animal trainer at the Zoo, was bitten on the right arm by Tootsie, a performing black bear, at the conclusion of the afternoon's performance in the Zoo arena yesterday.

A woman spectator asked the trainer for a snapshot with Tootsie. In getting the bear to pose Kostial reached toward a pocket in which he carries sweets.

The animals' Tootsie snapped, cutting a gash in the trainer's arm that required eight stitches to close.

Kostial will carry the arm in a sling for several days, and the daily performances he directed will be discontinued during the period. The afternoon performance in the monkey house, interrupted recently by the illness of Sammy, one of the troupe, has been resumed.

Boyd handed reporters a statement in behalf of District Attorney Blanton, which said that Blanton, when preparing the case for trial, felt that prosecution was justified. "His expressed views were known to and considered by the Attorney General," the statement said. "Mr. Blanton does not feel that the criminal actions should be terminated if the court has any objections to interpose."

FOURTH TRIAL OF EX-CONVICT FOR SIKO MURDER UNDER WAY

Testimony Begun in Case of George Couch, Accused of Killing Patrolman.

Taking of testimony in the fourth trial of George Couch, former convict, charged with first degree murder in the killing of Patrolman Albert Siko, began today in Circuit Judge McFay's court.

Assistant Circuit Attorney William B. Flynn, outlining the State's case to the jury, reviewed the testimony of witnesses in three previous trials. He did not ask for the death penalty. Couch's first trial resulted in a life sentence but he obtained a new trial. At the second and third hearings of the case there were hung juries.

The first witness was Thomas Fisher, operator of a one-man Weistown street car, who was held up April 29, 1934, near Fourth street and Delmar boulevard. Patrolman Siko was shot as he pursued the robber. Fisher was not asked to identify Couch as the holdup man, and on cross-examination evaded questions about his previous identification of Louis De More as the robber.

De More, Chicago chauffeur, who pleaded guilty to the administration's murder and was serving a life sentence at the Jefferson City penitentiary when Couch was arrested, repudiated his confession and was pardoned. He said he had been willing to plead guilty and take a life sentence rather than stand trial and risk the death sentence. Although he could not be produced by the State at previous trials of Couch, he will appear at the present trial as a rebuttal witness for the State.

noon at the Municipal Auditorium. He informed the employees that they would be tested by the results at the polls, and that "shirkers" might expect to be ousted from their jobs.

A statement today by William L. Igoe, president of the Police Board and leader of the Democratic faction opposed to the Mayor, that he would support the river front bond issue, indicated that most of Dickmann's political enemies had hopped on the band wagon for the day at least.

Justice of the Peace Jimmy Miller, Fourth Ward Committeeman and bitter political foe of the Mayor, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter this afternoon that he had not yet decided how he would vote on the river front proposal. He said he had given no instructions to his organization as to how to vote.

Miller, who had spent the morning having his teeth pulled, was not very talkative. He said he would make a tour of the precincts in his ward later in the day to sound out sentiment. If there had been any true agreement to support the bond issue, he said, he would have been able to tell the Mayor, Miller knew nothing about it. He asserted he was not a party to any intrigue.

A Post-Dispatch reporter, who visited a number of polling places in Miller's ward observed city employees were handing out sample ballots marked for the bond issue, and that Miller's precinct workers were standing around looking on. The city employees said they understood the Miller organization was "going down the line" for the bond issue.

Miller has a record of delivering large majorities. When he supported the $16,100,000 bond issue in the special election May 15, 1934, his ward gave 7553 favorable votes to 39 opposed.

Paul O. Peters, secretary of the Citizens' Non-Partisan Committee opposing the bond issue, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter this afternoon that information from the committee's workers indicated a heavy vote against the river front bonds in the Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth and Sixteenth wards.

Igoe's Letter.

In a letter to Chairman Luther Ely Smith of the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial Association, campaigning for the river front bond issue, Igoe said: "Whatever our personal or political differences may be, they should not stand in the way of the passage of the bond issue." He said he had always been for it.

The $7,500,000 bond issue is to pay for the city's contribution to the Federal Government, with the expectation that the latter will provide an additional $22,500,000 in order to create a $30,000,000 national park on the central river front as a memorial to Thomas Jefferson, the Louisiana Purchase and western pioneers.

The park would cover 37 blocks between the levee and Third street and between Eads Bridge and Poplar street, including in addition the block bounded by Third and Fourth, Chestnut and Market streets. Opposition to the project was expressed by the Taxpayers' Defense Association, representing property owners and businesses in the affected area, and the Citizens' Non-Partisan Committee.

PUPILS' SAVINGS HELD NOT PREFERRED CLAIMS

St. Louis Court of Appeals So Decides, in Upholding Circuit Bench Ruling.

A decision by the St. Louis Court of Appeals today upheld a Circuit Court ruling that school savings deposits of public school pupils in banks which have closed must be regarded as common claims, not preferred claims.

Claims of about 23,000 public school pupils for about $96,000 deposited in the closed Savings Trust Co. and Natural Bridge Trust Co. were involved. More than two years ago Superintendent of Instruction Gerling of the Board of Education offered to guarantee, up to $25,000, out of his personal funds, the children's deposits in these banks.

The decision today was in a test suit brought in the name of Douglas Alroy Phillips, a school depositor and son of Alroy S. Phillips, lawyer, on a claim of $12 against the Savings Trust Co. He was one of 10,530 students at various schools who deposited $81,596 in the bank before it was closed Jan. 12, 1933.

Contention in the Suit. It was contended in the suit that young Phillips' deposit should be paid in full as a preferred claim because he was a minor. Circuit Judge Hamilton ruled that it was a common claim, subject to the same proportion of payment out of assets as ordinary deposits. The appellate court decision cited a stipulation in the Circuit Court trial that the Savings Trust Co. was not expected to pay more than 60 per cent on common claims. A first distribution of 20 per cent on common claims was authorized a year ago.

In behalf of the plaintiff, it was argued that school children's deposits should be treated as trust funds because minors lacked legal capacity to enter binding contractual relations. The Court of Appeals, in an opinion by Commissioner Robert L. Sutton, adopted by Judges Hostetter, Becker and McCullen, declared it was settled law that a minor was not absolutely incapable of making a contract in the sense that a contract by him would be absolutely void. However, the Court said a minor could disavow a contract.

Debtor and Creditor. The Court added that, in the absence of fraud, it could see no reason why the making of a bank deposit of his own money by a minor should be regarded as creating a trust relation, rather than the ordinary relation of debtor and creditor.

In another division of the Circuit Court, at the same time Judge Hamilton overruled the Phillips claim for preference in April, 1934, a similar claim in the case of the Natural Bridge Trust Co. was overruled.

Dr. Gerling told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that he would carry out his guarantee, if necessary. He said about $1500 had been contributed by various persons toward his guarantee; this money he has in his pocket.

Long Most Heavily Guarded Man in American Public Life; Never Went Anywhere Alone

Three Pistol Experts or Friend With Sword Cane Always With Senator in Washington —State Police and Militia in Louisiana.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Senator Huey Long was the most heavily guarded public man in America. The precautions thrown around him were possibly less skillful than those with which the secret service surrounds the President, but what they lacked in subtlety and organization was made up in numbers and armament. Especially was that true when he was on Louisiana soil.

His Washington bodyguard usually consisted of three men. It was headed by a Captain of the Louisiana State Highway police, who was armed with a weapon which he calls a "burglar gun." It is a double-barreled 20-gauge sawed-off shotgun, mounted on an oversize Colt pistol frame, and loaded with "lugs." He carried it wrapped in paper, which he breaks on the underside to reach the triggers.

Fires With Both Hands.
The second member was Murphy Roden, the young motorcycle policeman who is reported to have killed Dr. Weiss immediately after Weiss shot Long. Roden has numerous medals for pistol marksmanship. He carried two .45-caliber automatics, and can fire from the hip with both hands. Anyone who has seen him handle his weapons, as this writer has, will realize that the phrase "riddled with bullets" in the news dispatches describing the killing of Dr. Weiss, is not an empty one.

One evening last January we were on a train returning from New Orleans to Washington, and Roden and this writer were sitting alone in the Pullman smoker. He is a pleasant young fellow, and excellent company, although quiet.

"Some of these days, I suppose, you will have to kill somebody," I remarked. "Oh, sure," he replied calmly, "but you have to expect that when you take a detail like this. I only hope when the time comes I get the right man. It wouldn't be a very pleasant sensation to find out I had got the wrong one."

They Were "Attended To."
The third member of the three in Washington was a young detective named Campbell, from the Louisiana State Board of Criminal Identification and Investigation. He is also a recognized expert with automatics. Three gorillas attached to the anti-Long political organization caught Campbell in a New Orleans saloon last March without his automatics, and kicked 14 of his teeth out. Later I was cryptically told that they "had been attended to." What form this attention took I was never able to learn, but from my general knowledge of Long's methods I surmised that it was extremely unpleasant.

When Long went to Louisiana, Roden, Campbell and the Captain with the "burglar gun" served as a nucleus of a very much larger and more elaborate bodyguard. With another visiting correspondent, I accompanied the Senator from the Roosevelt Hotel to a broadcasting studio one evening, and it would have been impossible for a stranger to get within 20 feet of him. The sidewalks were cleared ahead of us and no one was allowed to approach from the rear.

This guard included between 30 and 40 men. It was made up of State Highway Policemen, members of the Bureau of Identification and Investigation, all armed with automatics, plus six members of the National Guard with fixed bayonets. No one was ever permitted on the same elevator with Long except members of his own party.

Senator Carried Automatics.
In addition, when in Louisiana, the Senator himself carried two snub-nosed automatics—and carried them in his lower vest pockets. He had the pockets made especially deep for that purpose. Apparently he didn't have a chance to draw

Sunday night.
Long was well aware of the danger he was in, and frequently joked about it. A few weeks ago he was lunching in the Senate restaurant with Senator Nye of North Dakota, with characteristic mischievousness he suddenly exclaimed: "Jerry, do you know what would happen if some lunatic walked through that door and blew your head off?"

The startled Nye said, "No. What?"

"Every newspaper in the country would have a headline saying, 'Assassin's Bullet Misses Long.'"

Comment to Correspondents.
As a Long party was preparing to pull out of Baton Rouge for New Orleans last January, Huey came back to an automobile in which this writer and another correspondent were seated and said: "I'd like to ride up with you fellows, and tell you about this road I built, but I don't like to expose you."

"To what?" I asked him. "How in the hell do I know to what?" he retorted. "Some mania may be sitting behind a rock down the pike with a shotgun; he'd probably miss me and get both of you." We told him we could take the chance if he could, and we roared out of Baton Rouge at 75 miles an hour. "I don't let 'em drive me as fast as they did when I was Governor," he remarked. "I used to go banging around the State at 90 and 100 miles an hour over gravel roads. That's too fast. I never let 'em get over 80 now."

Why Family Stayed Home.
After Long came to Washington to take his seat in the Senate, Mrs. Long and the children remained almost constantly at the family home in New Orleans. A friend once remarked to the Senator that this fact was causing gossip, and might endanger his political career.

"I know it," he replied, "and there ain't a damn thing I can do about it. Some nut is going to try to kill me some of these days, and I don't want my wife and kids around when the bullets start flying."

Senator Long took little part in the formal society of official Washington, preferring to limit his visiting among a small circle of friends, mostly other Senators and newspaper men. On such occasions he was invariably accompanied by the three bodyguards, whose presence had come to be accepted by those who know Long well.

But on the rare occasions when he did attend a formal party, he was not unguarded. He accepted such invitations only on condition that an invitation also be extended to big Bob Brothers, Washington agent of the port of New Orleans. Brothers' armament consisted of an elegant sword cane.

Chester Jurney, sergeant-at-arms of the Senate, once seized Brothers as he was emerging from the Senate gallery, and searched him. He found no firearms, and it didn't occur to him to examine the cane.

Often Got Ahead of Guard.
On occasions, Long's disregard of his personal safety bordered on recklessness. He had an incorrigible habit of getting out in front of his bodyguard, and apparently it was this habit which exposed him to Dr. Weiss' bullet. His guards always tried to surround him, but despite their vigilance he was constantly getting ahead of them.

Not long ago he bought a new Ford sedan. As I was leaving his office late one afternoon, he offered to drive me downtown, since that was on his way home.

"I want you to see how my new flivver handles," he said. So, with the three "trigger men" sitting in the rear seat we tore down Pennsylvania avenue through heavy traffic at 50 miles an hour with Huey passing street cars on the wrong side, and laughing boisterously as this alarmed correspondent held on for dear life. Half way along the route I pointed out to him that he had gone through two red lights.

"Yes, sir, it's a funny thing," he replied. "I'm color blind. I can't tell the red from the green."

THREE FOUND DEAD AFTER MIDNIGHT SWIMMING PARTY
Bodies of Two Men and Woman in River Near Cashmere, Wash.

CASHMERE, Wash., Sept. 10.—Two men and a woman were found dead in the Wenatchee River at a tourist camp near here yesterday following a midnight swimming party.

They were identified as Earl Harklerode of Everett, Wash., restaurant operator, Earl Squire, cook, and Frankie Nieman, also known as Violet James.

Charles Jorgenson, proprietor of the camp said the three registered late Sunday. Empty whiskey bottles and several undecipherable notes were found in their cabin, police said.

Authorities are considering the possibility that two of the swimmers drowned while trying to save the third.

AMAZING CAREER OF HUEY P. LONG, THE DICTATOR

Asked once why he did it, he replied shortly:

"I know what I'm doing. You haven't seen anybody around here that can give Huey Long any lessons in politics, have you?"

Wanted to Be President.
Despite his startling candor, it was always difficult to know exactly what he had in mind. He made his own plans, and never divulged them until he was ready to act. He indicated to this writer on many occasions that he would be a candidate for President next year, but whether he would have been will forever remain a mystery.

There is no doubt that he had a profound distrust of, and mounting animosity against President Roosevelt. The chances are that, in the next Democratic national convention, he would have sought to block Roosevelt's nomination. What he would have done if he failed is something concerning which one second-guesser's guess is as good as another's.

Any attempt to appraise him or to speculate on his place in history would be idle now. Time will take care of that. What he accomplished is fairly common knowledge—yet it is less than two weeks since he celebrated his forty-second birthday.

CAPITAL WEIGHS POLITICAL EFFECT OF LONG'S DEATH

 Both Democrats and Republicans Interested in Light of His Threat to Run Against Roosevelt.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Shock and wonder about the political effect of the death of Senator Huey P. Long mingled in varying degrees in the capital today.

Within administration circles and the Republican organization as well attempts were made to gauge the political effect. The consensus appeared to be that no politician now was in sight who could take the place made by the Louisiana for himself.

Although administration leaders had publicly not given much weight to Long's plans to attempt to turn the presidential nomination from Roosevelt next June, and to run independently if he failed to do so, Republicans had welcomed his intentions on the theory that it would split the Democratic vote in November.

Representative Fenerty (Rep.), Pennsylvania, suggested the possibility of a congressional inquiry into the assassination. From Atlantic City, he telephoned his office here before Long died to say the House committee which already had planned investigation of the Long dictatorship in Louisiana "might also look into who it was instigated the attempted murder."

 Comment of Colleagues.
Senator Smith (Dem.), South Carolina, said he believed Long's "share-our-wealth" movement would collapse without him. In 27 years as a Senator, Smith said, "I've seen nobody there comparable with Long—and I don't mean solely in exhibitionism and buffoonery. He was a genius. He had a mind extraordinary in both power and quickness."

Senator Norris (Rep.), Nebraska, said today: "I think the method of his taking off is—well, I can't describe it—it's detestable. "There will be some bad effects from it. It was unjustified. Huey was like nobody else. There was lots of good in Huey Long. An analysis of his voting in the Senate would show he usually voted right. His heart was right although his method wasn't. I think he was wrong in his attitude toward the President, vicious in that respect, but nevertheless he did a lot of good things."

 A "Brilliant" Fighter.
Senator Bone (Dem.), Washington, said: "I can't imagine such things occurring in a civilized community. I have the greatest sympathy for his family. It is intolerable and unthinkable and outrages all decency when people have the ballot and could have given the Senator a supreme victory that means within a few weeks without resorting to taking up instruments of murder."

Senator Donahey (Dem.), Ohio, said: "The most colorful member of the United States Senate has passed on. He could fight a majority or a minority equally well. He was brilliant and lost proportion only by intense pursuit. His passing was a tragedy that every fair-minded man must deplore."

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said: "I feel the greatest sympathy for his family and friends. It is seriously disturbing to learn of a resort to unlawful violence as a political weapon anywhere in America."

Senator Thomas (Dem.), Utah, said Long "was a many-sided man. He was at his best when making a plea for the world's down-trodden. Few men in our public life have shown such contrasts. He would build up by destroying. He gave school books to the poor but would not do him honor. He seemed to lack respect for ordinary accepted processes, yet he always had a law for what he did. He was definitely a reflection of our rapidly changing times."

 Louisiana's Ambitions.
Long announced his intention to campaign against Roosevelt in Chicago last month. His plans were not limited to the presidency. Long had spoken also of striking at members of the House and Senate whose re-election next year is considered important to the administration, notable among them, Senator Robinson of Arkansas and Senator Harrison of Mississippi.

"He won't be back," Long once said bluntly of Robinson.

Long was credited largely with the election to the Senate of Mrs. Hattie Caraway to succeed her late husband in Arkansas two years ago.

Similarly at various times during his speeches in the Senate he singled out Harrison and Senator Bailey (Dem.), North Carolina, and less emphatically Senator McKellar (Dem.), Tennessee, as men who would not "be back."

Long could pack Senate galleries as did no other speaker, and the end of his talks signaled a mass departure, the noise of which at times interrupted business for several minutes.

"The show is over, you can go now," Vice-President Garner once remarked as the exodus began at the end of one of Long's speeches.

 Fighting on Many Fronts.
In speeches Long repeatedly told how he would go up and down the land with his sound truck to fight Roosevelt next year. Continually he hammered at Cabinet members, more especially at Postmaster-General Farley and Secretary of the Interior Ickes, whom he called the "chinchbug of Chicago." He accused Ickes and Federal Emergency Relief Administrator Hopkins of employing FERA and FWA funds at the request of the administration to undermine him in Louisiana. He accused Farley of manipulating the award of public building contracts to friendly construction firms and laid before the Senate a mass of data which he argued proved his charges. He was unable to force an investigation. Early in his career in the Senate he began building up a nation-wide political organization. "Clubs are springing up by the dozens every day," he often insisted, and with an expansive wave of his hand, would add: "All over the country, in every state."

Long was a figure of importance. I wouldn't dare give my husband any other kind of sauce. LEA &amp; PERRINS SAUCE THE ORIGINAL WORCESTERSHIRE

REPORT ASSAILS PROPOSED STATE BAR CONSTITUTION

St. Louis Association Votes to Oppose Plan to Let in All Licensed Lawyers as Members.

REFORM THREATENED,
W. R. GENTRY SAYS

He Declares "Those Inimical to Our Program Would Flock Together
and Outvote Us."

The St. Louis Bar Association voted last night to oppose the proposed new constitution for the Missouri Bar Association in its present form, which would automatically include all lawyers entitled to practice in the State under the Supreme Court rules. President Thomas F. McDonald will appoint a committee of 15 to express the views of the local association at the special meeting of the State association at Jefferson City next Saturday.

"Adoption of the new constitution would mean the death knell to usefulness of the St. Louis Bar Association, which has behind it 61 years of service," William R. Gentry declared in presenting the report of a special committee appointed to study the proposed constitution.

"The result would be," he went on, "that those inimical to our reform program would flock together and outvote us so that there would be a quietus on efforts to disbar unworthy lawyers and the whole thing would be hushed up."

Gentry said Article 2 of the proposed constitution, providing for an all-inclusive membership, attempted automatically to bring in all attorneys, whether or not they were interested in the aims and ideals of the bar as carried out by the local association.

Article 4, providing for a general council comprising one representative from each of the 38 circuit bar organizations, was particularly objectionable, he pointed out. St. Louis, with about 2250 lawyers, would be represented by one person. There are about 5500 attorneys in Missouri. The St. Louis Bar Association has a membership of 878.

Article Ten, which would set up the Circuit bar organizations, was objectionable, he said, because it would enable all lawyers who had paid their dues to select the one person to represent the local bar. The St. Louis Bar Association, he added, had a selective leadership with the purpose of maintaining high standards of the profession and keeping out unworthy lawyers.

He expressed the view, too, that adoption of the proposed constitution would mean an end to the judicial referendum as carried out by the local association.

Others Signing Report.
Other members of his committee who signed the report were William T. Jones, Kenneth Teasdale and George C. Willson, all former presidents of the St. Louis Bar Association. The report was adopted without a contrary vote from the 300 members present, although William F. Fahey had dissented in the discussion.

Fahey argued that every person qualified to practice law was qualified to be a member of an all-inclusive State organization. The bar, he asserted, was divided against itself and hence inefficient. He agreed that the local association's Grievance Committee had been effective, but added that "every man must be painfully aware that we are ineffective in many quarters."

Jesse W. Barrett, former president of the Missouri Bar Association, suggested that the delegation be instructed merely to vote to defer action on adoption of the Constitution, explaining that he understood Boyle G. Clark of Columbia, general chairman of the 38 Bar Disiplinary Committees, had said he would call for immediate organization of the State bar were the proposal for a new constitution defeated next Saturday.

Gentry, however, said that the report recommended opposition only to the present form of the proposed constitution. More careful consideration, he said, would eliminate objectionable features.

James E. Garsting, speaking in favor of the report, said there was no need for an all-inclusive bar as proposed, since it already existed under the Supreme Court rules. He favored continuance of "an active, militant, independent association."

Paul Hale, expressing similar views, said that all St. Louis lawyers were not members of the St. Louis Bar Association simply because many were not interested in its work and not because it was "high hat."

The Kansas City Bar Association has gone on record as opposed to the proposed new constitution.

Tribute to Librarian.
The meeting, at Hotel Chase, was called primarily to honor Gamble Jordan, librarian of the St. Louis Law Library, who completed his fiftieth year of service with the library Sept. 1.

Circuit Judge O'Neill Ryan, admitted to the bar in 1880, five years before Jordan became associated with the library, described the li-

U. S. AND CANADA CONSIDERING NEW WAY TO VALUE IMPORTS

Arbitrary Figure Fixed. It Is Brought Out in Trade Pact Discussions.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Modification of existing procedure in evaluating imports is under consideration in negotiations now under way for a Canadian-American reciprocal trade pact.

In replying to Canadian proposals for tariff duty reductions and classification of trade regulations, Secretary of State Hull has recommended that the discussions include the important question of "methods of determining the value of merchandise for duty purposes in either country."

Hull's suggestion resulted from representations made by American manufacturers and exporters who desire changes in present procedure because of the arbitrary value set on goods.

Under Section 43 of the Canadian Customs Act, the Minister of National Revenue is authorized to disregard foreign invoice prices on goods of a kind made or produced in Canada, and establish whatever value for duty purposes he sees fit.

The Canadian customs ruling has been invoked on about 100 American articles, it was said, and since there is no appeal from the Minister's decision the arbitrary valuation figures have stood despite any evidence of actual lower value.

On other American articles, it was explained, manufacturers and exporters do not know what valuation may be placed on their goods until they are in Canadian customs.

PRIEST HELD FOR PLOT TO SELL RUSSIAN CHURCH TREASURES

Deacon of Cathedral Near Moscow
Also Arrested After Newspaper Exposure.

MOSCOW, Sept. 10.—Four arrests resulted yesterday from a newspaper exposure of reported attempts to make illegal sales of church treasures and the alleged purchase of stolen railway property by two Soviet officials at Moscow.

A priest named Vicky, of the Vozenensky Cathedral at Ryazan, near Moscow, and the deacon of the Cathedral, L. L. Desobri, son of a former lawyer of Leningrad, were arrested on a charge of attempting to sell church treasures to the Soviet-owned Torgsin shops where foreigners trade. Under an official order all church treasures must be delivered to the State Treasury.

The railway shop workers, Lavroff and Durmanoff, were arrested on a charge of stealing and selling property, after the newspaper Gudok, organ of the Commissariat of Railway Transport, accused two high-ups of paying 2000 rubles for oil and wood which disappeared from the shops of the Kazan Railway. The two officials were not arrested.

15 MASSACHUSETTS COMPANIES GET WRITS AGAINST AAA TAX

14 Cotton Mills and One Pork Products Firm Granted Temporary Injunctions.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 10.—Fourteen Massachusetts cotton textile mills and a pork products company obtained temporary injunctions against the collection of AAA processing taxes in Federal Court yesterday.

Federal Judge Elisha H. Brewster granted the injunctions, effective until Sept. 30, against collector of Internal Revenue William M. Welsh.

In a recent decision, Federal Judge Harland B. Howe of Burlington, Vt., refused to grant a similar injunction to the Queen City Cotton Co. The company contended its costs of production were 33 per cent higher than competing firms which had been granted injunctions.

The firms seeking injunctions now cited the United States Circuit Court of Appeals ruling holding the processing unconstitutional.

MAYOR URGES AUTO DRIVERS' LICENSE LAW

In Message Asks Aldermen Also for Fuel Test and New Garbage Plant.

A request of Mayor Dickmann for the passage of three measures pending before the Board of Aldermen was received by the board without action yesterday.

In a special message, the Mayor urged the passage of measures for city licensing of automobile drivers, for an investigation by the United States Bureau of Mines as to whether Illinois coal could be made to burn smokelessly, and for appropriation of $40,000 for a second plant for the disposal of garbage by grinding.

Bernard J. Fitzsimmons, chairman of the Public Safety and Gas Investigation Committee, and nounced to the board that a public hearing on the drivers' license bill would be held at 10 a. m. Monday, and told a Post-Dispatch reporter that in his opinion the city was getting along "pretty well" with its present garbage plant and could spend the $40,000 better for some other purpose.

The Mayor's message called the Aldermen's attention to "disappointing" results recently in the endeavor to reduce the volume of traffic accidents, in spite of efforts of the police and the police courts to enforce the traffic code strictly. He asserted that the situation could not be improved without licensing of drivers. The bill for this was introduced during the summer, in anticipation of authority conferred by a State enabling act which became effective Aug. 27.

The bill for the smokeless fuel inquiry would appropriate $7500 for use of the Bureau of Mines, with the expectation that coal operators would furnish a like amount. Fitzsimmons said some members of the Gas Investigation Committee, which has looked into the possibility of obtaining a supply of straight natural gas here, were not satisfied that the effort to find some means of burning soft coal smokelessly would be worth making.

An ordinance was passed unanimously to prohibit parking in the central downtown area Sept. 22 to 27, from the day before the opening of the American Legion national convention to the day after the closing, inclusive. The area will be bounded by Fourth street, Delmar and Twelfth boulevards and Clark avenue. In addition parking will be prohibited Sept. 24 the day of the Legion parade, in the section bounded by Grand and Twelfth boulevards, Delmar and Clark.

For the employment of additional help for the Recorder of Deeds, a bill appropriating $6360 was passed. Attorney-General McKittrick had held the city had to provide this.

BANKERS' ASSOCIATION HEAD SAYS FEARS ARE GONE NOW

Rudolf Hecht Tells Business Men's Conference That Feeling of Security Is General.

By the Associated Press.

BABSON PARK, Mass., Sept. 10.—Rudolf Hecht, president of the American Bankers' Association, told 2000 business men today that a greater feeling of security exists in banking circles at present than has prevailed in years.

Hecht, a New Orleans banker, in an address prepared for the twenty-second annual National Business Conference here, said his opinion represented the "composite thought" derived from contacts throughout the nation.

The banker "is no longer haunted by the fear of impending disaster," Hecht said. "He is no longer filled with doubts as to what unexpected weaknesses may be lurking in banking or in business conditions affecting banking that will come forth to plague him tomorrow. I am confident that the bankers who have survived all of the trials and tribulations of the past few years will have the courage and the ability to meet whatever new problems lie ahead."

U. S. AIR INSPECTOR DIRECTS SEARCH FOR MISSING FLYERS

Alaskan Pilots Will Center Work in Salchaket River Valley.

By the Associated Press.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Sept. 10.—Alaskan airmen were mobilized under Federal direction today in an intensive search for pilot Arthur Hines and three passengers who have been missing since Aug. 19.

Murray Hall, Federal Aeronautics Inspector, has taken charge of the search, which will be concentrated in the Salchaket River Valley, south of the isolated Chena River district. He assigned pilots to cover various sections of the valley and report each night. He said popular subscriptions had yielded a fund sufficient to finance 250 hours of flying time in the search.

Yesterday two planes made a fruitless scouting expedition to the head of the Chena River.

TWO KILLED WHEN PLANE CRASHES IN SOUTH DAKOTA

By the Associated Press.

REDFIELD, S. D., Sept. 10.—Mack Miller, 21 years old, a registered pilot and instructor of Blismark, N. D., and Miss Sarah Peterson, 28, a University of Southern California medical student, were killed when their plane crashed on a farm near here yesterday.

Witnesses said the plane fell from a height of about 40 feet while circling over the farm.

BAR ON DUCK BAITING OFFICIALLY CONSTRUED

Congressman Cochran Gets Answers to Three Questions From Biological Survey.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The severity of the 1935 Federal hunting regulations is illustrated in the answers to three questions put to the Biological Survey by Representative John J. Cochran of St. Louis in behalf of a sportsman constituency who in the past has hunted ducks in St. Charles County.

The constituent wrote that there were four small lakes in St. Charles County, and his first question was: "Would it be permissible to feed or bait on one of the lakes and not shoot over it, and at the same time shoot on one of the other lakes which had not been baited?" To this question the acting chief of the Biological Survey replied: "The regulation is that waterfowl are not permitted to be taken with or by aid of corn, wheat, oats or other grain or products thereof, salt, or any kind of feed by whomsoever, or for whatsoever purpose, placed, deposited, distributed, scattered or otherwise put out in any environment whatsoever, whereby such waterfowl or doves are lured, attracted, or enticed to the hunter. Consequently it is unlawful to shoot over baited areas, or to take advantage of the flight caused by the feeding. However, baiting waterfowl in one area of the property does not, in my judgment, prohibit shooting on another part of the property where the effect of baiting does not influence the stooing of the birds."

The second inquiry was: Are we permitted to bait up until the opening day of the duck season?" The answer was: "The regulation respecting baiting does not take into consideration any element of time, and if a hunter takes advantage of feed put out prior to the opening of the season for the purpose of hunting the birds during the open season attracted as a result of such feed, such hunting would be unlawful."

The St. Louisian's third question was: "Are we permitted to have live decoys on one of the lakes of our own property if we do not shoot over it?" To this the acting chief replied: "There is nothing in the regulation that forbids anyone to have live decoys anywhere on his property so long as the birds attracted by the decoys are not shot. The regulation is that in the taking of waterfowl the use, directly or indirectly, of live duck or goose decoys is not permitted. So, if the decoys are kept in a manner so as to attract wild ducks and geese to the vicinity where the shooting takes place, it would be unlawful to take advantage of the flight caused by the decoys."

EASTERN COAL MEN REFUSE TO ARBITRATE

Reject United Mine Workers' Proposal on Wage Differential Dispute.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 10. — Appalachian soft coal producers rejected last night the United Mine Workers' proposal to submit their wage differential dispute to arbitration.

The move left the general wage and hour agreement negotiations in this situation:

The mine union asks for wage increases averaging about 10 per cent and a five-hour cut in the present 35-hour work week.

The producers are at odds among themselves over wage differentials between and within districts.

The present agreement expires next Sunday midnight, and the union chiefs say the miners will not work Monday morning without a new agreement.

The rejection of the union proposal to set up a commission of miners and operators to arbitrate the differential dispute was reported to have been unanimous.

The scale committee appointed a subcommittee of six to continue negotiations.

EDITOR URGES REPEAL OF LONG'S STATE LAWS

James M. Thomson Calls for Return to Representative Government in Louisiana.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 10. — Repeal of the late Senator Huey Long's "dictatorship" laws by the Louisiana Legislature was urged today by James M. Thomson, publisher of the New Orleans Item and Morning Tribune.

Thomson issued a statement as he left for New Orleans after a vacation, spent with Mrs. Thomson, a sister of Senator Clark of Missouri, in Virginia. It follows:

"The death of Senator Huey P. Long ends the career of a man whom I have known or known of in American public life.

"Outside Louisiana it has been almost impossible to convey an understanding of what he has done in the State to change the traditional separation of the judicial, executive and legislative functions of government whereby the liberties of the peoples of the American States, and of the American Union, have been preserved. In doing this Long became dictator of Louisiana.

"Even in Louisiana what Long did in less than a period of 10 years seemed so incredible that it was only partly understood by many of our people.

"Underestimated His Ability.

"Along with many others who opposed Long for the various offices he sought, I for many years underestimated his real abilities.

"Finally I came to realize that he possessed almost unique capacity for sustained labor, with an incredibly rapid and acute mentality. The tragedy of his life and of his public career is to be found in his insatiable seeking for personal power; more than that, he wanted one man should possess; and his failure to use that power for proper public ends.

"Long used power as ruthlessly as any man who ever sought to set himself up as a dictator and Long became a dictator more supreme in his control of the substance of power over Louisiana than is Mussolini in Italy or Hitler in Germany.

"For over a year past Long has been putting laws on the statute books of Louisiana which seemed to make it impossible to overthrow his dictatorship except by revolution. I have been one of those who believed in some way that dictatorship would have been overthrown in next year's elections; that its very excesses would help the people destroy it.

New Orleans Conditions.

"In New Orleans, where I know conditions best, Long has never had anything but a minority following. In our last mayoralty contest, for example, his candidate mustered a little over 25 per cent of the vote. Five out of six outstate congressional districts in Louisiana are even now in the hands of his opposition. Both the form and substance of representative American government, the rights and liberties of the people of Louisiana, can be restored if the people who oppose the Long machine will stand together and work together. Division among Long's opponents put him in power and kept him in power.

"It has required great restraint to continue to stand for and advocate law and order in Louisiana under the conditions of the Long dictatorship. Every good citizen must oppose and deplore the substitution of bullets for ballots in the settlement of political disputes, however violent. Yet it is true that thoughtful citizens in Louisiana have dreaded for years the shedding not of the blood of two men, but the possible shedding of the blood of hundreds or thousands before the Louisiana dictatorship reached its end.

Sympathy to Family.

"To the sorrowing family of the late Senator, to Mrs. Long and her children, and to the family of Dr. Weiss, and to the personal friends of the two dead men, I extend my sincere sympathy.

"Long's death, viewed from its public effect, should give Louisiana a political breathing spell. The laws which he enacted, to buttress and extend his dictatorship, must be repealed. Independent, representative men must be put in places of power by the people and then, and only then, will there be peace in Louisiana, with he State restored to its right place in the Union."

MISSIONARY DECLARES U. S. IS NO LONGER MORAL GUIDE

Woman From India Tells W. C. T. U. Convention That She Is "Disillusioned."

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 10. — Mrs. E. Stanley Jones, educator and missionary in India, told the sixty-first annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union last night that the United States was no longer a "paradise" of moral guidance for Eastern peoples.

Mrs. Jones said she was "disillusioned" that she could find no place to eat where beer was not sold, and that Indian students in America had admitted to her that "in a moral sense America has failed us."

She condemned not only the sale of liquor, but the "queer songs and sounds that come over the radio, the startling, artificial appearance of many of our lovely girls, the vulgarity of the new books, the new freedom between the sexes," and the fact that "while churches are being sold for debt, people still have money for ball games, motor cars, movies, cigarettes and beer."

PRESIDENT AND WIFE WIRED 'GOOD WISHES'

Senators Borah and Wheeler Among Others Who Sent Messages to Long.

By the Associated Press.
BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 10. — President and Mrs. Roosevelt were among the first to wish Senator Long recovery. Their message of sympathy was one of many sent from over the nation by friends and enemies of the Senator.

The Roosevelt telegram, dispatched to the Long family by Marvin H. McIntyre, secretary to the President, read: "The President and Mrs. Roosevelt ask me to extend to you and to the Senator their sympathy and good wishes for his recovery."

This was after the President issued a statement at Hyde Park regretting the affair and saying, "the spirit of violence is un-American."

Senator William E. Borah, whom Long said, he would be willing to support for President, expressed his sincere hope that Senator Long recovers.

Senator Hugo Black of Alabama said at Birmingham: "There is no excuse that justifies an assassination."

Senator and Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler telegraphed Senator Long: "Keep up your courage and your great fight."

Telegrams, telephone calls and letters poured into Baton Rouge from leaders in many walks of life.

"Please accept my sincere sympathy," the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin wired.

Mayor T. Semmes Walmesley of New Orleans, one of Huey Long's arch political opponents, ended his note of sympathy with the admonition that "no one can countenance such violence."

Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, against whom Long had promised to campaign, described the shooting as "deplorable from every standpoint."

"Regardless of what people think of the public acts of Senator Long," said Senator P. A. McCarran, Reno, Nev., "personally he was a kindly and benevolent man."

Senator Ellison D. Smith of South Carolina described Long as a "genius."

Ten years ago, your operator needed an average of 7.3 minutes to put through a Long Distance call.

Today, the average waiting time is only 1.5 minutes. Nine out of every ten Long Distance calls are completed while you hold the line.

MORE DEPENDABLE SERVICE

Service was more subject to interruption by wind, sleet and other elements, a decade ago.

Service interruptions from natural causes have been greatly reduced by the substitution of cable for aerial wire. In 1935, the Bell System has 12,500,000 miles of Long Distance lines in practically storm-proof cable.

MORE TELEPHONES WITHIN REACH

In 1925 there were 11,500,000 Bell telephones and 5,800,000 other telephones in the United States, Canada and Cuba to which you could talk.

Now there are 13,500,000 Bell telephones and 17,300,000 other telephones in all parts of the world to which you can talk. By land lines or Bell System overseas service, 93% of the world's telephones have been brought within reach.

RATES REDUCED

A three-minute, station-to-station daytime conversation between St. Louis and New York

In 1925 cost $5.60. The Kansas City to Chicago rate was $2.65; Dallas to San Francisco $9.40.

In 1935 the same calls cost $3.25 instead of $5.60; $1.75 instead of $2.65; $5.50 instead of $9.40. Since the latter part of 1926, a series of reductions in Long Distance rates has saved many millions of dollars a year to telephone users.

In the Bell System, the American Telephone & Telegraph Company is the parent company, and operates the long distance lines connecting the 24 regional Bell companies. Bell Laboratories carries on the research work; Western Electric manufactures, purchases, and distributes.

Without this specialized organization back of the men and women of the Southwestern Bell, telephone service might be possible. But it could not be service as uniformly good, as quietly accurate, as far reaching, and as inexpensive as the service you know today.

Frank J. McDevitt, director of streets and sewers, yesterday made public a letter written to Mayor Dickmann disagreeing with a traffic safety program announced last Thursday by Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, vice-president of the Board of Police Commissioners. Maj. Lambert suggested reduction of the speed limit from 30 to 25 miles an hour during the night, employment of 90 additional motorcycle policemen and construction of 400 raised concrete safety zone platforms.

"While full and complete cooperation is being obtained among the various agencies having anything to do with the traffic situation, those agencies should bear in mind that their activities must not conflict," the letter stated. "Any overlapping of activities by these various agencies should not be construed as intentional, but rather the result of over-enthusiasm."

Duties of Two Departments.

"The duties of police, it was pointed out, are 'primarily of an enforcement nature,' while 'the Director of Streets and Sewers has had full and complete charge of traffic regulations such as signs, signals, safety zones, painting of center lines, etc.'"

Although agreeing that speed is a contributing factor in the large number of traffic accidents, McDevitt suggested that the pending city drivers' license law, providing for revocation of licenses for careless driving, might accomplish the same purpose as a reduction in speed limit.

"Many speeders who do not object to paying fines," McDevitt wrote, "will likely change their careless driving when it means the suspension or revocation of their driver's license. It would be my suggestion to see how this law functions before making any changes in the present legal speed."

Safety Zone Platforms.

McDevitt also was doubtful about the advisability of raised concrete safety zone platforms, stating, "there is a very decided difference of opinion among our citizens as to the relative merits of safety zones and of lighting and visible by night. As a result, these safety zones shown a decrease in the last year."

McDEVITT CRITICISES POLICE TRAFFIC PLAN

Streets Director Writes to Mayor on Safety Program of Maj. Lambert.

Frank J. McDevitt, director of streets and sewers, yesterday made public a letter written to Mayor Dickmann disagreeing with a traffic safety program announced last Thursday by Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, vice-president of the Board of Police Commissioners.

Maj. Lambert suggested reduction of the speed limit from 30 to 25 miles an hour during the night, employment of 90 additional motorcycle policemen and construction of 400 raised concrete safety zone platforms.

"While full and complete cooperation is being obtained among the various agencies having anything to do with the traffic situation, those agencies should bear in mind that their activities must not conflict," the letter stated. "Any overlapping of activities by these various agencies should not be considered as intentional, but rather the result of over-enthusiasm."

Duties of Two Departments.
 The duties of police, it was pointed out, are "primarily of an enforcement nature," while "the Director of Streets and Sewers has had full and complete charge of traffic regulations such as signs, signals, safety zones, painting of center lines, etc."

Although agreeing that speed is a contributing factor in the large number of traffic accidents, Mc-Devitt suggested that the pending city drivers' license law, providing for revocation of licenses for careless driving, might accomplish the same purpose as a reduction in speed limit.

"Many speeders who do not object to paying fines," McDevitt wrote, "will likely change their careless driving when it means the suspension or revocation of their driver's license. It would be my suggestion to see how this law functions before making any changes in the present legal speed."

Safety Zone Platforms.
 McDevitt also was doubtful about the advisability of raised concrete safety zone platforms, stating,
 "there is a very decided difference zones and concrete cones."

 "Bearing this in mind," the letter stated, "and also because of the lack of funds, we have been somewhat reluctant to install any considerable quantity of these devices without first ascertaining the wishes of the people."

"The safety zones in use at the present time are not entirely satisfactory. We have improved the lighting and made the cones more visible by installing base lights. As a result, the accident record at these safety zones and cones has shown a decided improvement in the last year."

Says Funds Are Lacking.
 "The traffic section of this department has always operated with insufficient funds. This situation should be corrected after passage of the drivers' license bill as the fees are earmarked for use by the traffic section."

"We also will be able to provide a substantial increase in the number of traffic regulation inspectors.
 The duties of these men will be confined exclusively to the regulation of traffic and they may, either in whole or in part, obviate the necessity of employing the 90 additional police mentioned by Maj.
 Lambert."

ILLINOIS LABOR CHIEF FOR 30-HOUR WEEK

R. G. Soderstrom Addresses
 State Convention Delegates
 at Belleville.

Committees were appointed today
 at the convention of the Illinois Federation of Labor at Belleville.
 Included in the propositions they will consider for the drafting of resolutions to be submitted to the convention is a report of the Federation's executive committee for improvement of labor conditions by legislation. After appointment of committees, the convention is scheduled to adjourn until 9 a. m. tomorrow while resolutions are being drawn.

R. G. Soderstrom, president of the Federation, in a public address at the Belleville public square last night, advocated a six-hour day and five-day week in all major industries and crafts in order to distribute work and widen buying power.

"Wages must be balanced with the cost of living," he said, "and consumption of goods must be stimulated by increased wages."

Soderstrom described how the "machine age" had multiplied production and decreased the demand for labor, slowly taking the buying power from the masses. "The profits made by the machine," he said,
 "must be more evenly distributed among the workers."

He reviewed the history of social and labor legislation in Illinois and pointed out that labor organizations had always supported measures for improvement of conditions for the working man. This organized support was responsible for the enactment of 45 such measures in the State, he said.

Soderstrom appealed to the Progressive miners to make peace with the United Mine Workers of America, to rejoin them and the American Federation of Labor, and "eliminate hostilities" among mine workers. Belleville is a Progressive miners' stronghold.

The report of the executive board, which the committees will consider for resolutions, outlines a six-point legislative program with the following objectives:
 Restoration of health and safety

LOUISIANA HOUSE PASSES MEASURES FAVORED BY LONG

Several, Designed to Restrict Federal Activity in State, Meet Opposition in Debate.

By the Associated Press.

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 10.—The House of Representatives passed yesterday a series of bills directed against the Federal administration.

Even in the absence of Senator Long, who was dying in a hospital, his legislative followers held firm against sporadic opposition, pushing ahead the program described by him as preserving "State's rights" against any encroachment by the Federal Government.

Armed guards stood at every door in the capitol and all who entered were searched for weapons. Otherwise, legislative business proceeded much as usual.

Before taking up the anti-Roosevelt measures, the House passed a bill aimed at Judge B. H. Pavy of Opelousas, father-in-law of Long's assassin. Judge Pavy has been one of the Senator's principal opponents in St. Landry Parish.

The bill, designed to open the way for Long's followers to oust Judge Pavy in the next election, would change the boundaries of his judicial district.

Anti-Roosevelt Bills.

One measure provides a jail term for Federal agents exercising "unconstitutional" powers in the State. It was aimed at Long's opponents who have been placed in charge of New Deal activities in Louisiana.

Representative Isom Guillory, administration floor leader from St. Landry Parish, said the bill "provides that no Federal agent can come into the State and exercise a power not granted by the Federal Constitution. This bill is to enable us to maintain the integrity of our State."

Representative George Lester, bitter Long opponent from West Feliciana Parish, described it as a "futile gesture."

"It is just a piece of political propaganda to be used on the stump," he said. "In the last analysis, the law would be subject to review in the Federal Court."

It was passed by a vote of 69 to 15.

Road Control Measure.

Another bill, passed 72 to 17, requires that Federal road construction programs in the State must be approved by the Louisiana Highway Commission.

Representative J. C. Bute of Franklin Parish said it was designed to prevent the Federal Government from starting construction of "political" roads before the January State election and then abandoning them after the election.

Norman Bauer, anti-Long man from St. Mary Parish, said the measure was drafted to give the State control of Federal road funds which Long's administration would use for "political purposes."

The House passed a bill under which the State administration would take charge of all machine guns, gas guns, sawed-off shotguns and other designated short barrel weapons in Louisiana.

"This is for the protection of the public," said representative Morris Wimberly of Bienville Parish, a Long leader.

"Does this mean State officers must register their weapons?" asked Representative Lester. "Yes," Wimberly replied.

The bill provides that the weapons be registered with the superintendent of the State Bureau of Identification and Investigation and provides a jail penalty for non-compliance.

Bills Sent to Senate.

The House sent the bills to the Senate, where they were referred to the Finance Committee.

After being reported back to the Senate at 2 p. m. they are scheduled to be passed to third reading for passage tomorrow morning.

The House held its session yesterday without a single reference being made to the shooting of Long. The Senate opened its session with a prayer for his recovery by the Rev. C. E. Bordelon, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene.

"We pause a moment before beginning the important work of forming the laws of this great State to petition thee fervently regarding the life and health of a fellow citizen, a benefactor of humanity, and a personal friend, our beloved Senator of Louisiana," he said.

The Senate stood in silent prayer for Long just before adjournment.

NO TRUE BILLS RETURNED

IN E. ST. LOUIS BOND INQUIRY

Informations Against Magistrate and Four Others Expected to Be Dropped As Result.

The East St. Louis grand jury returned on true bills yesterday after investigation of the bail bond practices of Justice of the Peace Walter W. Hinderberger and four Negro bondsmen, Mose Allen, Jesse Crigger, Minor McDonald and Joe Nelson.

Informations charging Justice Hinderberger with malfeasance in office in accepting bonds from unqualified persons, and the bondsmen with violation of the Illinois professional bondsmen's act, would be dismissed as a result of the grand jury's action, Assistant State's Attorney R. V. Gustin indicated.

The law regulating professional bondsmen requires them to obtain licenses and defines as a professional bondsman one who signs more than three bonds for a consideration, any 30-day period. Gustin said the State was not able to show that the four who were investigated were professional bondsmen.

The inquiry began last February following the murder of William C. Moss, street car motorman, in a holdup. Two of the three youths subsequently executed for the crime, were at liberty when Moss was killed on bonds given in burglary cases which were signed by the four bondsmen and approved by Justice Hinderberger.

NEW OLD AGE AID BOARD NAMED FOR ST. LOUIS COUNTY

Takes Place of One Which Resigned Friday for Lack of Funds to Operate.

A new St. Louis County Old Age Assistance Board was appointed yesterday by the County Court to receive applications for State old age pensions, in place of the previously appointed board, the members of which resigned last Friday because of lack of funds to operate.

The new members are John A.

Dowdall, attorney, of Ferguson, appointed for four years; Miss Katherine C. Jones, teacher, Webster Groves, three years; and Edward O. Harris, Clayton, purchasing director for the Citizens' Conservation Corps at Jefferson Barracks, two years. The members receive no compensation and their appointments are subject to the approval of Allen M. Thompson, State Old Age Assistance Commissioner. State Representative Joseph A. Falzone of St. Louis County announced Saturday that he had obtained permission to receive non-sen applications from county residents until the new board is ready to operate. About 600 applications have been filed with Walter E. Miller, Clerk of the County Court.

UNION ORGANIZER BEATEN BY MOB AT SULLIVAN, ILL.

Harold Davidson Plans to Bring Action in Federal Court Against Men Who Attacked Him.

SPECIAL TO THE POST-DISPATCH.
SULLIVAN, Ill., Sept. 10.—Harold Davidson, Mattoon, organizer for the Shoe Factory Workers' Union, who was beaten and driven from town here Saturday afternoon by a group of Sullivan business men, has asserted that he plans to bring action in Federal Court against the men who assaulted him. He indicated the Sullivan business men, all of whom are known, might be charged with kidnapping.

Davidson came here, he said, to procure affidavits requested by the National Labor Relations Board in connection with the case against the Brown Shoe Co. for violation of the Wagner Labor Disputes Act.

When he called at the butcher shop of City Commissioner W. M. Lane to protest the smashing of the shoe factory union here, he was invited into a back room "to talk things over." While there, the town's fire alarm rang and about 20 Sullivan merchants came running to the butcher shop, hustled Davidson into a car and took him to the southeast edge of the town where, according to Davidson, plans had been made to tar and feather him. Davidson said some of the mob, others beat him, shoved him into his auto which had been driven to the scene, and told him "to get going and not come back."

Says Papers Were Stolen.
Davidson's brief case was taken from him and his papers torn up, he said, including lists of former employees at the shoe plant, which recently reopened on an "open shop" basis after being closed on account of labor trouble.

T. L. Lawyer, former president of the Sullivan Shoe Workers' Union, previously had been told to leave town or "suffer the consequences." Lawyer moved Friday, announcing that he was going to Indianapolis where he formerly had worked.

The men who took part in the attack on Davidson are members of a "citizens committee" which has taken charge of employment in the shoe factory here. The company hires only those employees who are approved by the committee.

While the membership of the committee of about 150 members is no secret, their names having been printed on a poster announcing the reopening of the plant, the central committee which appoints the employees is not known, not even by members of the larger committee.

Statement to Be Signed.
Workers applying for jobs at the factory are asked to sign the following statement which is included in the application they must fill out:

"I hereby make application to the citizens committee for work in the Brown shoe factory in Sullivan, Ill., my term of employment being subject to performance of work assigned to me and to my co-operation with my foreman and employees."

Spokesmen for the citizens committee asserted that the plant was running smoothly and they expected no further labor trouble. Production was estimated at 2500 pairs daily, shoes a day. Output will be increased gradually until daily production reaches 4000 pairs. The plant employs about 410 persons, it was said, with a few workers being hired each day by the citizens committee.

Victim of Attack Recently Returned From Washington.
MATTOON, Ill., Sept. 10.—Harold Davidson, Shoe Workers' Union organizer, who was beaten and driven from Sullivan Saturday recently returned from Washington where he said he conferred with Federal officials in regard to citations against the Brown Shoe company for alleged violations of the Wagner Labor Disputes Act.

He was instructed to collect affidavits from senior employees of the Sullivan plant, he asserted. Davidson alleges that the men put to work when the plant reopened have not been employed in order of seniority, as required by law, he said he would continue his work.

AGAINST OLD FURNITURE IN NEW FEDERAL BLDG.

Chamber of Commerce Proposes to Move Used Equipment.

A protest against the contemplated use in the new Federal Building at Twelfth and Market streets of much of the old furniture in the present Federal Building at Eighth and Olive streets was made to Government officials today by the Chamber of Commerce.

Pointing out that the Government has invested about $3,800,000 in the new structure, Scott R. De Kins, secretary of the chamber, said, in a letter to Admiral C. J. Peoples, director of procurements for the Treasury and the Public Works Administration: "The feeling here is that the Government would be making a mistake to detract from its investment by equipping the place with time-worn furniture."

"The furniture in this new building should be befitting this magnificent structure," De Kins continued. "We understand the Census Bureau will occupy offices in the old Federal Building. They will employ about 2500 people for at least 15 months. They could well use this old furniture for, if it is removed, other furniture will have to be gotten to take its place. So, in our judgment, it would be best to leave the old furniture where it is and equip the new building with new furniture."

Purchases of new furniture should be divided among St. Louis dealers, the chamber argued in communications to Senator Clark and Raymond Walsh, the chamber's Washington representative. Robert Le Fevre of the Treasury procurement division replied that his office would be glad to give dealers here an opportunity to bid on anything it might be found necessary to buy.

Fountain Rothwell, Collector of Customs and custodian of Federal properties here, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that 70 to 75 per cent of the old furniture would be moved to the old building to the new, which will be ready for occupancy Oct. 15. However, he said, 30 per cent of the furniture in the new place would be new, ordered by the Treasury from Eastern and Northern factories, with which the Government has annual contracts for supplying any items needed. He did not know how much had been paid for new furniture. He conceded that there would be some incongruity in installing old-fashioned desks, chairs and other furnishings in the modernistic new structure.

A representative from Washington checked the old furniture here what they wanted to retain or would be willing to retain. Rothwell went on. He said he had asked to keep his own desk and chair, which he had used when appointed to a prior term in his office 21 years ago.

Much of the furniture to be moved dates from the opening of the present building in 1884. Desks, chairs, filing cabinets and small bookcases of that period are of heavy wooden construction, in contrast with modern steel equipment. Higher bookcases and some other bulkier articles will be left behind. A contract for moving furnishings, records and equipment, for $12,554, has been awarded. The four courtrooms in the new building will be newly furnished as part of the structural contract.

On removal of the present offices and courts, the old building will be used by 2000 or more relief workers compiling a card index of the 1900 census for use in administering the old-age pension law.

RAILROADS OFFER PLAN TO DIVIDE M. & ST. L. LINE

8 Northwestern Carriers, With RFC Approval, Ask
I. C. C. to Parcel Out
1600-Mile System.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Dis-memberment of the 1600-mile Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad was proposed in an application filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission today by the Associated Railways Co., an organization of northwestern carriers formed under a plan approved by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The Minneapolis & St. Louis operates from Minneapolis to Peoria, Ill., and Chicago, connects with the Wabash to St. Louis, and has branches in Iowa and Minnesota. It has been in receivership since 1923.
It was incorporated July 1, 1916, in Iowa.

The present plan, designed to save railroad transportation to as many communities as possible, was worked out after the Federal District Court at Minneapolis had ordered the road sold at receivership sale.

Roads Involved.
The Chicago Great Western, the Chicago & Northwestern, the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific, the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, the Illinois Central, the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, the Great Northern Railway and the Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie, at the request of the RFC, agreed jointly to parcel out certain sections of the road. Other sections would be abandoned and bus and truck lines substituted.

The plan provides that the Chicago & Northwestern will take over the road from Cresbard, S. D., to Northville, S. D.; from Florence, S. D., to Watertown, S. D.; Winthrop, Minn., to St. James, Minn.; Ormsby, Minn., to Monterey, Minn.;
Sioux Rapids, Ia., to Rembrandt, Ia.; Curlew, Ia., to Clare, Ia., and Northwood, Ia., to Albert Lea, Minn.

The Northwestern, in conjunction with the Illinois Central, would take over the line from Hopkins, Minn., to Albert Lea.

Burlington's Allotment.
The Burlington route would take over the line from Tracy, Ia., to Oskaloosa, and from Oskaloosa to Junction, Ill.

Either the Milwaukee or the Chicago Great Western would take over the road from Albion, Ia., to Oskaloosa; from Oskaloosa to Mason City; from Mason City, Ia., to Story City, Ia.; Hampton, Ia., to Algona, Ia.; Ruthven, Ia., to Ayres-hire, Ia.; Sherburn, Minn., to Dun-nell, Minn.; Norwood, Minn., to Hanley Falls, Minn.; Aberdeen, S.
D., to Leola, S. D. and Norbeck,
S. D., to Haven, S. D.

The Rock Island would take over the line from Des Moines to Gowrie, Ia.; Huntington, Ia., to Terrill, Ia., and Greenville, Ia., to the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific crossing.

The Rock Island jointly with the Northwestern would take over the line from Northwood, Ia., to Mason City.

The Great Northern would take over the line from Marietta, Minn., to Hanley Falls, Minn.

This distribution would dispose of 1025 miles of the road.

Other Provisions.
The plan calls for the Mason City (Ia.) terminals to be conveyed to the Rock Island, the Northwestern and the Great Western or the Milwaukee; the Oskaloosa terminals to the Burlington and the Great Western or the Milwaukee, and the Minneapolis terminals may be retained as a property of the Associated Railways.

However, the plan provides an alternative whereby the Minneapolis terminals may be turned over to the Great Western, the Northwestern, the Milwaukee, the Rock Island, the Illinois Central, the Burlington and the Soo Line to be operated jointly.

The plan states that the maximum cost to the Associated Railways under the court decree will be $7,200,000 plus whatever sums may be required to discharge existing equipment trust certificates of the Minneapolis & St. Louis and its receivers.

The Northwestern would be required to pay $1,189,000; the Burlington $1,289,000; the Great Western or the Milwaukee, for the interest in terminals at Oskaloosa and Mason City, $1,064,000; the Rock Island $1,087,000; the Great Northern $1,070,000; the Illinois Central $1,123,000; the Great Western $257,000; the Milwaukee $257,000, and the Soo Line $257,000.

The last three roads are assessed in this compilation only for a one-seventh interest in the terminal properties at Minneapolis.

Financing Provisions.
The proposal says that the Associated Railways plans to dispose of the other properties recoverable from the lines to be abandoned, to the best advantage, the net proceeds to be paid to the RFC to reduce the principal of bonds to be issued in payment for the sections to be operated.

The Associated Railways would consist of 80,000 shares of non-assessable common stock with a par value of $1 a share to be divided equally between the Northwestern, the Burlington, the Rock Island, the Illinois Central and the Great Western or the Milwaukee.

The bonds to be issued would mature in 10 years and bear 4 per cent interest.

CUBS AGAIN WIN, GIANTS TAKE TV

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—The Chicago Cubs victory over Boston when Charley Root shut outs in 83 minutes. It was the Cubs' seventh straight win in the 10-hit attack against Cantwell.

By the Associated Press.
PITTSBURGH, Sept. 10.—The Giants m-the Pirates here this afternoon when they Buccaneers in the both games today, 4 to 3.

Cy Blanton was the Terrymen's victim in the first game, marking the third time this season that the Giants have defeated him. Blanton was tagged for 10 hits and was wild at the start, and the Giants made all their runs in the first five innings.

Clyde Castleman, who started for the Giants, but was not in at the finish, received credit for the victory, his thirteenth of the year.
Mel Ott, gripped by the worst slump of his career, went hitless again to bring his total number of strikes to the plate without a safe blow up to 25. It was the sixth straight game in which Ott went hitless.

Browns Win, 8- Series With A

By a Special Correspondent of the PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10.—The fast-their lead in seventh place by winning the Athletics this afternoon to give them a cl-game series. The score was 8 to 6.

It was the thirteenth straight defeat for the unhappy Mackmen.
The Browns took an early six-run lead only for the Athletics to tie the score in a six-run rally in the third that finished Andrews. Van Atta, who took his place, was an improvement and was credited with the victory.

Cliff hit his second home in two straight games in the third with two aboard. He was Caster's first opponent after the latter relieved Turbeville.

Errors gave the Browns the victory in the sixth. Solters walked and with two down, Johnson dropped West's drive. Hemsley's

GOLF MEET

ST. LOUIS WILL AGAIN BID FOR NATIONAL TITLE BOXING TOURNEY

By Dent McKimming.

If the enthusiasm displayed at last night's meeting of the Ozark Division of the National Amateur Athletic Union is any criterion, interest in amateur athletics in the St. Louis area is going to register some new highs. When Charley Gevecker, re-elected president, asked for volunteers to serve as delegates to the annual national meeting to be held in New York in December a dozen persons responded. "Boys," exclaimed Gevecker, "what's happening! It wasn't so long ago we had to beg someone to represent us at the national meetings. You all came because we are only entitled to six votes."

And so the 27 club representatives had to determine by vote which of the 12 volunteers would be permitted to represent the district. The following were named: Misses Des Boeckmann and Olga Becker; Harry Regot, Benny Kessler, Al Fleishman and Gevecker. Alternates are Hans Wulff, Roy Keller, Dr. N. A. Rathert, Don Drees, Harry Kessler and Miss Gertrude Webb.

In addition to returning Gevecker to the position of president, the club representatives elected Al Fleishman first vice-president, Benny Kessler second vice-president, Karl Bauer third vice-president, Miss Des Boeckmann fourth vice-president, James "Scotty" Monteth secretary, George Berri treasurer, and Carl O. Kamp and Ernie Vornbrock handpickers.

President Gevecker will appoint chairmen for the various committees, about 15 in number, at a later date. These, with the officers above named form the board of governors which conducts the affairs of the Ozark Division.

To bid for boxing meet.

A bid will be made to bring the National A. A. U. boxing championships to St. Louis for the year 1935 and Chairman Benny Kessler told the members that he has unofficial assurance from other logical bidders that St. Louis request for the meet will be honored.

President Gevecker was authorized to make inquiry regarding the possibility of bringing the national basketball tourney to this city. It was held at Denver last spring. The girls track team which won 12 cups and trophies at the recent Canadian championships at Toronto will be sent to the national meet at New York. The St. Louis A. C. relay team and Miss Helen Stephens of Fulton, Mo., form the nucleus of this squad which proved a sensation at the Canadian meet.

Clay Signs and Men's Win Park Titles.

Jane Byron of the Clay Signs hurled two-hit ball to defeat the White Lines, 3 to 2, and clinch the girls' championship of the St. Louis South Side Park last night. Jane, a newcomer to the South Side park, has hurled 37 consecutive innings in 12 games and has pitched out the 1934 championship White Lines from the championship race. Freddie Goldmacher hurled the first of his second year championship in two years in tripping the South Side Chevrolts, 5 to 2, in the men's contest.

Ghoully Under Weight for Bout With Canzonieri

Head Coach Jimmy Conzelmann has the best material a Washington coach has had the chance to handle in a decade or two. He knows it, and the material knows it, and a tough 10-game schedule is expected to prove it.

The Bears, after a week or so of conditioning, are in fine shape and now sessions daily for the next 10 days, and immediately start the "rough stuff"—in other words, bodily contact work.

Scrimmages are not frequent in the Conzelmann system and those that are held come before the playing season starts. Chances are blocking practice will begin today with "live" tackling Thursday and scrimmage possibly Saturday.

By means of "dummy" scrimmage the need for timing and coordination for an effective offense. Also a new defense will be worked out—a sort of "roving" or "revolving" defense, for when the veteran Washington players are in action. A more orthodox defense will be used when the more inexperienced Bears are in the game.

Many of the teams the Bears will meet use the Notre Dame system—Michigan State, Duquesne, Creighton and St. Louis U.—while Illinois, Missouri and Southern Methodists also operate from a balanced line. This requires a special defense and if some extra time is spent preparing for an expected Illinois pass attack, that's only natural preparation.

Billkens Have Hard Schedule.

Coach Muellerleile of the Billkens has more building to do than has his Washington U. colleague. "Mull" has no great wealth of material in his varsity squad of 40 but there is a basis for an excellent and not-so-light line with a few standout backs to do the bulk of the ball-carrying.

There are 11 games on the Billkens schedule and all figure to be difficult. There are new names on the list—Arkansas State, University of the South, Mississippi, North Dakota and De Paul. Of the ability of these teams little is known so there won't be much credit for victory and considerable criticism for defeat.

RACING ENTRIES AND SELECTIONS

Up for Air.

THE work of the Brownies of late has been stellar. They're playing like champions, there isn't a doubt of it. On Sunday, our heroes emerged from the cellar, and when this is printed we hope they're still out of it.

Oh, Oh!

Coach Ted Cox of Tulane has set aside a day when the football fans will be invited to make suggestions and offer advice.

THE football season now approaches; we have with us the grand stand coaches.

Who with their strategy uncanny will coach the boys in Louisiana.

Babe Ruth says he gets a great kick out of picking an All-Star team every year. But it is nothing compared to the kick the fans get out of picking it to pieces.

See where Ted Allen of Alhambra, Cal., retained his title as world champion horseshoe pitcher. The lucky stuff!

Shipments of all types of hosiery during July amounted to 7,000,000 dozen pairs, as compared with 6,500,000 for the same month last year.—Business note.

Though silk or rayon, plain or checked, the poor as well as rich are soaked.

While Dizzy Dean was chalking up his twenty-fifth victory of the season, Joe Medwick tore off his 200th hit for the year. Joe and Dizzy are certainly pointing for a return engagement with their friends.

When on the ball they safely upon the bases they were stranded. The boys did things, but went no places.

As 16 men were left on bases.

Dizzy Dean not only made Babe Ruth's All-Star team but is in a fair way to succeed himself as the most valuable player in the National League.

Although Ditz made the Ruth team with one hand tied behind him, he will not pitch for it. He doesn't like exhibition games.

World series games, however, are a different proposition. He would rather pitch in those above all. Paul's the same way.

Thought for the Day.

UNTIL each team a streak must be broken; they cannot win or lose them all.

Real Football Work Begins.

Today is September 10 which means nothing particular outside of football circles but means a good deal in them. For, today is the day when hundreds of football coaches will take personal charge of hundreds of eleven and formally direct the work of moulding individual players into teams which may win fame on the gridiron.

Here in St. Louis, Jimmy Conzelmann will take charge at Washington and Cecil Muellerleile at St. Louis U. Up at Champaign, Bob Zupke will look over the Illini, and down at Columbia, Don Faurot will start the system which he hopes will bring the Missouri Tigers out of the slough of despond and into the football spotlight.

SCHOOLS TO WORK UNDER NEW PASS RULE

Two rules that differ from the intercollegiate code will be in force for Missouri High School football teams this season. The first is that forward passing is allowed from any point behind the line of scrimmage instead of from a point five yards back from the scrimmage line as in the college rules; second, the ball is brought in 15 yards from the side lines out of bounds plays instead of 10 yards.

These changes will be in effect because last year the Missouri High School Athletic Association voted to join the National Federation of State High School Associations. This organization has its own set of rules of which the above two are the major points of difference from the intercollegiate rules. It is a member of the organization last year and employed those rules.

The forward pass rule is the same that the professional eleven uses and it is expected to open up the high school game. Its use last year found favor with the Illinois teams and coaches who discovered that it added the offense and placed a greater premium on fast and clever eleveners.

Some of the local coaches were opposed to the change last year, but now that the rules are in effect, they are eager to try them.

'WHITEWASH' CHARGED IN HURRICANE INQUIRY

Miami Veterans' Commander Says Negligence Increased Loss of Life in Florida.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 10.—John J. Skillman, commander of the Miami Chapter of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, charged today that Aubrey Williams, investigator for the Federal Relief Administration, had "whitewashed" negligence and poor judgment which Skillman said caused great loss of life on the Florida keys in the hurricane last week.

Skillman said he had 67 affidavits from veterans on the keys which he would present to the national convention of the V. F. W. in New Orleans Sunday. He announced he would ask the convention to request President Roosevelt to make a fuller investigation.

Wants Camps Abandoned.
The resolution will demand, in addition to a new investigation, that any consideration of re-establishing the veterans' camps on the keys be abandoned, or that army men be placed in charge of veterans' camps, he said.

Skillman charged that Paul Pough, commander of Overseas Post 3270, V. F. W., at Lower Matecumbe, had called on Ray Sheldon, commander of the three camps, at 6 p. m. the day before the hurricane.

demanding that the veterans be taken from the keys.

When told the veterans would "leave anyway," Pough said, Sheldon threatened to post a guard to see that they remained, though Sheldon himself, Pough asserted, already had warned his subordinates to move their families from the keys.

Skillman said Williams would not listen to those who criticized the Weather Bureau and camp officials for failure to evacuate the keys.

Search for Bodies.
Two hundred and fifty picked men searched Florida's keys yesterday for more hurricane victims. Pyles dotted the islands. Sheriff D. C. Coleman, heading operations, said he hoped the work of cremating bodies would be finished this week.

Conrad Van Hynning, FERA Administrator, announced he would seek $200,000 or $400,000 for partial rehabilitation and repair of storm damage in the keys and other areas. Civilian rehabilitation in the keys, he said, will be handled by the Red Cross.

The Red Cross was informed more than 200 bodies had been cremated. In Miami over the weekend 132 bodies were buried. Other interments took place in the Matecumbe Cemetery on the keys. Relief workers still were finding bodies.

ALL ITALY TO BE CALLED TO ARMS IN ONE-DAY TEST

Mussolini Announces Mobilization of All Fascist Forces Soon, With Sirens and Church Bells Giving the Signal.

6,650,000 PERSONS

Subjects in Colonies to Take Part in Movement
—Members of Party Living Abroad to Telegraph to Rome.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Sept. 10.—Premier Mussolini today ordered a one-day mobilization of all the Fascist forces of Italy. The mobilization will test the country's ability to spring to arms at a moment's notice.

The order involves 2,000,000 members of the Fascist party and 650,000 young Fascists between 18 and 21. They will be accompanied by 4,000,000 Fascist boys.

The order set no date of the mobilization, but announced that it would be proclaimed by sirens and church bells.

Fascists living abroad are required to telegraph the secretary of the party. Mobilizations will be held in Italy's colonies.

The Premier today reviewed several thousand young Fascists, members of the Avanguardisti, and told them: "You are more than a hope. You are a certainty. To whom is the right of battle reserved?"

"To us!" the youths answered in a tremendous shout.

Hitler and Mussolini.
Chancellor Hitler's assurance of collaboration with Italy on a basis of "reciprocal comprehension of the vital necessities of the two peoples" was accepted in informed circles to mean support of Italy's expansion plans in return for Italian sympathy with Germany's colonial ambitions.

It was made clear that Italy would welcome Germany's sympathy for its East African venture—sympathy denied it by Great Britain, with the publication here of the interchange of speeches between Italy's Ambassador to Berlin, Bernardo di Attolico, and Hitler in the German capital Sunday.

Official circles quickly saw the portent as Hitler and Attolico both acknowledged the international complications of the Italian-Ethiopian situation at the present moment.

It was agreed that the sounding of this note in the ceremony attending the presentation of Attolico's credentials went beyond the usual exchange of amenities.

With the general feeling prevailing that the present discussions at Geneva on the Italian-Ethiopian problem are futile, it was thought possible that Italy might again begin to voice its views in regard to Germany's international right as a rebuttal for what it considers a useless discussion of a purely colonial question.

Press Attack on Britain.
The authoritative newspaper Giornale d'Italia editorially attacked Great Britain, charging it modified its respect for treaties in accordance with its material interests.

The editorial contended that this policy accounted for Great Britain's adoption of a different attitude toward the Italian-Ethiopian controversy than that it maintained toward the conflict between Japan and China.

The attack was inspired by news that Sir Frederick Leith-Ross of Great Britain expected to take advantage of a visit to Japan to discuss with the Japanese Government the prospects for concluding an Anglo-Japanese commercial agreement.

"These British groups which are agitating against pretended Italian violation of the sanctity of treaties and the League Covenant, and are invoking against it the severest sanctions, have not fought and are not fighting with equal violence and equal strength Japanese invasion of China's territory," the editorial said.

"England is disinterested in the sanctity of treaties and the integrity of China's territory, but she feels with Japan concerning collaboration or rather division of this territory."

"In Ethiopia, on the other hand, there is the business of Rickett & Co. And for all other considerations, Ethiopia becomes sacred and inviolable."

It was made clear that Italy would welcome Germany's sympathy for its East African venture—sympathy denied it by Great Britain, with the publication here of the interchange of speeches between Italy's Ambassador to Berlin, Bernardo di Attolico, and Hitler in the German capital Sunday.

Official circles quickly saw the portent as Hitler and Attolico both acknowledged the international complications of the Italian-Ethiopian situation at the present moment.

It was agreed that the sounding of this note in the ceremony attending the presentation of Attolico's credentials went beyond the usual exchange of amenities.

With the general feeling prevailing that the present discussions at Geneva on the Italian-Ethiopian problem are futile, it was thought possible that Italy might again begin to voice its views in regard to Germany's international right as a rebuttal for what it considers a useless discussion of a purely colonial question.

Press Attack on Britain.

The authoritative newspaper Giornale d'Italia editorially attacked Great Britain, charging it modified its respect for treaties in accordance with its material interests.

The editorial contended that this policy accounted for Great Britain's adoption of a different attitude toward the Italian-Ethiopian controversy than that it maintained toward the conflict between Japan and China.

The attack was inspired by news that Sir Frederick Leith-Ross of Great Britain expected to take advantage of a visit to Japan to discuss with the Japanese Government the prospects for concluding an Anglo-Japanese commercial agreement.

"These British groups which are agitating against pretended Italian violation of the sanctity of treaties and the League Covenant, and are invoking against it the severest sanctions, have not fought and are not fighting with equal violence and equal strength Japanese invasion of China's territory," the editorial said.

"England is disinterested in the sanctity of treaties and the integrity of China's territory, but she feels with Japan concerning collaboration or rather division of this territory."

ALL ITALY
TO BE CALLED TO ARMS IN ONE-DAY TEST

Mussolini Announces Mobilization of All Fascist Forces Soon, With Sirens and Church Bells Giving the Signal.

ORDER TO AFFECT

Subjects in Colonies to Take Part in Movement—Members of Party Living Abroad to Telegraph to Rome.

By the Associated Press.
ROME, Sept. 10.—Premier Mussolini today ordered a one-day mobilization of all the Fascist forces of Italy. The mobilization will test the country's ability to spring to arms at a moment's notice.

The order involves 2,000,000 members of the Fascist party and 650,000 young Fascists between 18 and 21. They will be accompanied by 4,000,000 Fascist boys.

The order set no date of the mobilization, but announced that it would be proclaimed by sirens and church bells.

Fascists living abroad are required to telegraph the secretary of the party. Mobilizations will be held in Italy's colonies.

The Premier today reviewed several thousand young Fascists, members of the Avanguardisti, and told them: "You are more than a hope. You are a certainty. To whom is the right of battle reserved?"

"To us!" the youths answered in a tremendous shout.

Hitler and Mussolini.

Chancellor Hitler's assurance of collaboration with Italy on a basis of "reciprocal comprehension of the vital necessities of the two peoples" was accepted in informed circles to mean support of Italy's expansion plans in return for Italian sympathy with Germany's colonial ambitions.

It was made clear that Italy would welcome Germany's sympathy for its East African venture—sympathy denied it by Great Britain, with the publication here of the interchange of speeches between Italy's Ambassador to Berlin, Bernardo di Attolico, and Hitler in the German capital Sunday.

A. A. Milne Says Italy Can't Justify African Campaign

Can Point to Great Britain, He Writes, No More Than Ethiopia Can Cite Slavery in U. S.

By A. A. MILNE.
(British Dramatist, Novelist and Essayist).

COTCHFORD FARM, Hartfield Sussex, England, Sept. 10.—Italy's case against Ethiopia is a simple one.

Ethiopia is a barbarous country; she is not provided with tanks, airplanes and the poisonous gases of civilization. She is grievously misgoverned, as are most European countries.

She tortures her prisoners; as do America, Germany and Russia. She denies justice to the innocent; as Germany denies it to the Jew, America to the Negro and Italy to the anti-Fascist.

Her worst crime of all is that she possesses vast undeveloped resources; as does the British Empire and as does every country in the world which allows children to be brought up under conditions which stunt the body and atrophy the mind.

In short, Italy's case against Ethiopia is God's case against the world.

Yet the world does move; and in 1935 Italy can do no more to justify the forcible annexation of Ethiopia by reference to Great Britain's forcible annexations of the last century than Ethiopia can justify slavery by reference to the American slavery of the last century.

Equally we are entitled to say, however, that just as America no longer profits by the slavery she discarded so the British Empire should no longer monopolize the profits system she now condemns.

The only hope for the world lies in recognition of the fact that if we are to build up a civilization in which countries honor their pledges and might is no longer right, we must begin again from the beginning.

On the predatoriness of earlier wars and the vindictiveness of the great peace we can find nothing worth building.

of the 'have' nations to develop their interests together."

George Lansbury, veteran labor leader, in a speech at Dumfries, Scotland, sought a solution to please everybody—except Imperialists.

"We must be prepared," he said, "to share the natural sources of wealth which are ours with the rest of mankind."

Addressing the British Association for the advancement of science at Norwich on population problems, Sir Arnold Wilson, M. P., said: "Personally I would not be a party to a policy which might involve us in going to war to prevent the expansion of a growing nation unless I were satisfied that we, who occupy most of the unpopulated but habitable portions of the earth, had played our part by offering to make room somewhere."

VON REICHENAU DISPLACED AS GERMAN WAR OFFICE CHIEF

Shifted to Munich Without Explanation; Gen. Kelpel Advanced to Vacancy.

BERLIN, Sept. 10.—Major-General Walter von Reichenau, chief of the War Office since the Nazi party came into power, was relieved of his post today and sent to Munich to command the Seventh Army Corps.

The official announcement gave no reason for the change. At the same time, Major-General Kelpel, former Munich commander, was named to replace him.

Gen. von Reichenau had been close to Gen. Werner von Blomberg, Minister of Defense. As chief of the War Office, von Reichenau had been the highest officer under von Blomberg.

He was even over Gen. Hermann Goering as far as the army was concerned, and over Gen. Werner von Fritsch, chief of staff.

TENSION IN GREECE
AS PREMIER URGES
MONARCHY VOTE

Proclamation Favoring Restoration Issued After Bayoneting of Two Republican Leaders.

GEN. PANAYOTAKOS
ONE OF WOUNDED

He and Brother Stabbed Attempting to Protest Against Royalist Move at Cabinet Meeting.

By the Associated Press.
ATHENS, Sept. 10.—Premier Panayotis Tsaldaris, head of the Greek Republican Government, issued a proclamation today urging the people to vote for the restoration of the monarchy.

The proclamation came after a night which saw the tension between Monarchists and Republicans break in an open fight outside the doors of the Cabinet chamber, with the bayoneting of two Republican leaders by Monarchist guards.

After deploring the night's events, Premier Tsaldaris' proclamation asked for calm and order, concluding:

"I consider democratic royalty as the natural regime for Greece and ask the people to vote for it in the impending plebiscite."

Precautions Against Violence.

The Government took precautions today against a renewal of yesterday's violence which broke up a Cabinet meeting that was considering the issuance of a communique on restoration of the monarchy.

Panayotakos, leader of the anti-Monarchist forces and commander of the Athens garrison, led a group of Republican army officers into the Cabinet meeting to protest against the shift of Premier Tsaldaris from his position of neutrality on the restoration question to one favoring the return of former King George.

Brothers Resist Arrest.

Minister of War George Kondylis promptly ordered the arrest of Gen. Panayotakos and his brother, a Republican deputy. Both were wounded when monarchist guards attempted to carry out the orders.

It said they were taken to a hospital and tension spread over the capital. It was felt that the incident might set aflame the smoldering Republican forces.

Panayotakos was forced to resign his command of the First Army Corps in favor of Gen. Papagos, according to reports. It was announced that Premier Tsaldaris would issue a communique giving the Cabinet's views regarding the restoration of the monarchy.

Statement by Government.

The Government issued the following statement:

"As the result of certain movements of the First Army Corps under certain circumstances which led to the resignation of the Minister of War, Gen. George Kondylis, a Cabinet meeting was summoned to examine the situation. The Minister of War then resigned his position, having been persuaded his motives were due to a misunderstanding."

"While the Cabinet was meeting in a room in the building of the Chamber of Deputies, a brawl started between a number of persons in the outside corridor. The Army Corps commander, Gen. Panayotakos, who intervened to restore order, was slightly wounded during the quarrel. As a result of his wound he has been succeeded as army commander by Gen. Papagos."

"Gen. Panayotakos, whose wounds are superficial, returned home after treatment at a hospital."

Interior Minister Quits.

Pericles Rallis, Minister of Interior, resigned. Secretary of the Interior Sayas was expected to succeed him.

Former King George of Greece is living in London. Reports of his impending return to the throne have recurred frequently in recent weeks. He has been in close communication with Royalist sympathizers of the Greek republic. Only recently Mayor Kotsias of Athens called on him in London bearing counsel from Tsaldaris not to return to Greece at the present time.

BENNETT FOR RETIRING
ALL LABORERS AT 60

Canadian Prime Minister, Seeking Re-election, Makes Radio Address.

By the Associated Press.
OTTAWA, Sept. 10.—Prime Minister Bennett, in a radio speech last night, advocated withdrawal from the labor market persons 60 years and over, conversion of dominion, provincial and municipal debts at lower interest rates, establishment of a loan council and Government aid for education of children of the unemployed.

Bennett, who recently started his campaign for re-election, promised to aid home owners in obtaining relief for private debts by extending the benefits of the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act.

This legislation, more than a year old, enables a farmer to compromise his debts on a basis of ability to pay.

Announcing the intention of the Government to ask the Canadian people to convert their holdings in dominion, railway, provincial and municipal bonds at a lower interest rate, Bennett said savings resulting from conversions in the last five years amounted to $16,800,000 a year. The last dominion issue, maturing in 20 years, sold at a rate of slightly more than 3 per cent.

"In order to reconstitute our national debt, our railway, our provincial and municipal debt," he said, "we propose to set up a loan council."

External debts, he announced, could be paid only in goods and services, asserting Canada's entire debt to the United Kingdom was so paid. With the present increase in external debts, he continued, a favorable trade balance with all other countries would not be sufficient to enable the dominion to meet its obligations to the United States, unless there was an increase in trade with that country.

BRITISH NEWSPAPERS
ON KILLING OF LONG

London News-Chronicle Says Dictators 'Must Take Risk Attaching to Job.'

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Sept. 10.—Dispatches from Baton Rouge, La., stating "Huey Long died this morning" caused a stir in Great Britain, where political murders in the present age are unknown.

Morning newspapers were filled with columns of comment, news dispatches and sketches of the Louisiana Senator.

"Political murder is always to be condemned," said the News-Chronicle. "But so is the abuse of democratic methods to suppress liberty and establish a dictatorship of one man. If men like Huey Long aspire to be dictators they must take the risk attaching to the job."

The Manchester Guardian, which illustrated its news account with a map of Louisiana showing the locations of New Orleans and Baton Rouge, said editorially before receiving news of his death:

"It is a small wonder if those who were against him (Long) were driven into something like madness. What use is there left for sanity?"

"The tragedy of Huey Long is that he might have been a great Democrat."

"He won and could have kept the support of the people by fair means at least by means which count as fair in American politics. . . . "He has sacrificed discretion to revenge. In his unreasonable lust for power—derived no doubt from his early struggles and poverty—he has done his best to make it impossible for anyone to oppose him by lawful and peaceful means. He has left them the obvious alternative."

"Only American state politics could produce such a fantastic figure as Huey Long," said the Daily Mail in its comment on the "play-boy dictator."

The Daily Express printed half a page of pictures of Long and at least two pages of articles and comment, the story occupying far more space than news of the Italian-Ethiopian situation.

Several newspapers published wireless photographs of Dr. Carl A. Weiss Jr., the assassin.

DEATH FOR 23 MORE
AS REBELS IN ALBANIA

Many Others Get Prison Terms—11 Gendarmes Recently Executed.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Sept. 10.—A Reuters' dispatch from Tirana, Albania, reports that 23 persons accused of participating in the recent uprising at Fieri have just been condemned to death.

Ten others, the dispatch says, have been sentenced to life imprisonment, 12 alleged rebels to prison terms ranging from 12 to 15 years, and 50 persons acquitted.

Fifty other persons previously had been given death sentences in connection with the revolt. Eleven gendarmes who joined the rebels were executed Aug. 24. The next day four persons were sentenced to death, 23 to life imprisonment and 11 to 20 years imprisonment.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Laughing at War.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

As we read the foreign news, it becomes increasingly plain that a great testing time has come for those who during the past 15 years have given the best that was in them to the cause of world peace. It is hard to stand by and once more watch the world rush to its destruction, like Gadsden's wine down the steep slope; to feel oneself an unavailing Jeremiah, all of whose prophecies have failed. It is tragic to know that lovers must once more be sacrificed.

In a pattern called War.
Christ! What are patterns for? The temptation to admit failure is almost past resisting. But, rather, let us laugh. Kagawa, the great Japanese teacher, has shown us that for him who would change the status quo, laughter is the best weapon, far more powerful than the pistol, mightier than dynamite.

Before the laughter of Aristides, he reminds us, the idols of Greece fell; before that of Lucian, the idols of Rome went down. And Cervantes undid the preposterousness of feudalism with a smile. Let us, therefore, laugh at those who say the League of Nations is done and that man is incurably warlike.

One league may be done, but the league idea has entered the world to stay. The seeds which this generation has planted can never be uprooted. We have effectively stripped the pomposity from the slogans of war; we have successfully laughed out of court the high-sounding phrases of false patriotism.

No mother will ever again offer up her son without remembrance that war is a racket and that the greed of the few must be fed with the blood of the many. This much we have done. We have begun to laugh at war. Be of good courage then, workers for world peace. In spite of all discouragements, the dawn of a new age is beginning.

CCC Jobs.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOU have mentioned in an editorial the difficulty the CCC is having in filling its ranks, due to the ability of young men to be placed in industry. I fear this is not the case. In our fair city, there are many honorably discharged young men seeking re-enrollment, which is denied to them. This is my experience and that of several of my acquaintances. We are eligible to re-enroll by the CCC regulations. The reasons we get are obscure, but we remain unemployed and the CCC remains with a shortage of men.

Opposes Principle of Sales Tax.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

EQUITABLE taxation being taxation with relation to one's ability to pay without injury to his manner of living. I object to a sales tax because it makes a person of small income pay a tax which works an unnecessary hardship upon him. There are equitable taxes which could be substituted and would help decentralize wealth and prevent its accumulation in such unreasonable percentages.

Why not substitute sharply increased income taxes on the largest incomes? With 2 per cent of the people controlling about 85 per cent of the national wealth, it is from this group that taxes could be collected and the cost of collection be less, because it would not involve such a large number of people and require huge tax collection machinery. I also suggest a huge inheritance tax on the large estates. No matter how much tax might be imposed upon the heirs, they would be better off than before.

No matter how much our already tremendous potential demand may be increased, unless buying power for the masses is increased, they can get no more than in the past.

BITTER AGAINST SALES TAX.

Police Details at Schools.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I UNDERSTAND that police details at the schools of the city have been considerably diminished, and no one seems to know why our children should be denied this protection. Could it be that the politicians are taking this method to show that the force needs the 150 additional patrolmen asked for?

The schoolboy patrols have been doing admirable work, but without the help of the patrolmen, I fear that they will not be very effective. Let us have the patrolmen back on the job at once.

Tip to H. Duce.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I F Mussolini wants to do a little civilization, he is headed in the wrong direction, for to the north of him lies Germany, giving an example of a primitive, barbaric state of civilization.

Turn about, Mussolini, go up to Germany and pull Hitler's dead up out of the sand wherein he's hiding it. Indefinite to the world at large. The world would applaud a real deed such as that. But if you go into a comic opera jungle with a midge, unprepared, out-of-the-way African country, not honor, but a strut and a laugh for the bully, is yours.

Anyone who has ever seen you strut and shout in the news reels knows that you're the boy that craves glory, even if it's manufactured glory.

A KANSAS EXPERIMENT.

Few departures in state law-making have been so widely hailed as was the establishment of the Kansas Legislative Council by the Legislature in that State two years ago. Students of state government and progressive public-spirited legislators over the country at once recognized the importance of testing out a plan which would bring a small group of legislators and their presiding officers together every four months to study the legislative needs of the state and to formulate recommendations for the Legislature as a whole. Newspapers greeted the Kansas experiment as one which should be closely watched. Here, it was said, might be the device which would lift the legislative processes of state capitals to a new level of efficiency in public service.

A substantial period has now passed since this experiment got under way. Approved early in 1933, the Council of 10 State Senators, 15 State Representatives, the Lieutenant-Governor and the Speaker of the House, held its first meeting that year in preparation for a special session of the Legislature. Last year, the Council met at stated intervals in anticipation of the regular session held this year. Taking note of this, Prof. Frederick H. Guild, University of Kansas political scientist, has written an account of the Council's accomplishments for the current issue of the American Political Science Review. His report is worth attention.

During the special session of 1933, 60 per cent of the bills recommended by the Council were enacted into law, while but 27 per cent of the total number of bills introduced were passed. In the regular session of this year, 53 per cent of the Council's bills were approved by at least one house and 26.3 per cent were enacted into law. If the record of the Council was not so good in the second instance, there were mitigating circumstances. The regular session, advised that a special session later in 1935 would be required to consider the Federal program, delayed action on virtually all measures requiring additional appropriations. As Prof. Guild explains, this gave a negative rather than a constructive tone to the regular session.

It would be a mistake, however, as is pointed out, to measure the work of the Council solely by the success or failure of its recommendations. Not all of the work of the Council—indeed, only a small part of it—is gathered into bills. Much of it provides background material to help legislators distinguish between proposals which are good and those which are bad. As a result of extensive compilation of background material by the Council's research staff on some 42 topics, the 1935 session had more worthwhile information on major problems at its disposal than had any previous session of the Kansas Legislature. Prof. Guild reports. It is his opinion, too, that the Council, as a result of eight months' work on the school bill and four months' work on the State police bill, advanced the consideration of these measures by at least two years of normal legislative time.

When the Kansas Legislature approved the creation of the Council, it did so purely in the spirit of experimentation. Many members had their doubts as to how it would work out. Gradually, the Council has grown in the esteem of the Legislature. This is testified to by the indisposition of many legislators to decide policies until the Council has presented its facts; by increased demand for background material; by a perceptibly growing separation of facts and policy in discussion and debate. Still another measure of the place which the Legislative Council has won in the Legislature is the fact that, although several bills were introduced to repeal the law which set up the Council, only one reached the floor, and that was decisively defeated in the Senate. The House showed no inclination to support an effort to eliminate the Council's organization.

Considering the fact that the Council had a research staff but five months of the period covered by Prof. Guild's report, its record is noteworthy. It is even more noteworthy as an indication of what may be expected in the future. In its Legislative Council, Kansas may have found a solution for the fundamental problem of state law-making, namely: How to enact carefully considered legislation in law-making bodies of essentially political character which sit for a comparatively short time. The Kansas Legislative Council is a growing experiment.

EDWARD L. DOHENY.

Edward L. Doheny is dead. He rose from poverty to become one of America's richest men. Fortune reserved for him her most benign aspect. Seemingly Doheny, by the time the Harding administration opened, had attained all of the things which men crave. Yet Doheny permitted himself to play a principal role in the Elk Hills-Teapot Dome scandal, the worst the country has known since the Credit Mobilier affair of the Grant administration. He was indicted on a charge of bribing his old friend, Albert B. Fall, Harding's Secretary of the Interior, to turn over to him the Government's rich Elk Hills oil reserve. Fall was convicted; Doheny acquitted. But Doheny could not be acquitted in the court of public opinion. He died with a blot on his record which, in many other respects, was a superb one. One would guess that he would have given all of his millions to have eradicated the Elk Hills incident from the state.

SCHACHT VS. GOEBBELS.

The hidden strife within the Nazi Government becomes visible in the current series of clashes between Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank and Minister of Finance, and Dr. Paul Josef Goebbels, Minister of Propaganda. They represent, respectively, the moderate and radical factions of the Government. The fight came conspicuously into the open with Dr. Schacht's address three weeks ago, when he assailed "unregulated individual acts" against Jews and "other state enemies," and warned that the Jew-baiters were causing serious damage to Germany's foreign trade. Dr. Goebbels showed his power and his attitude by suppressing the speech in Germany, and the campaign continued without pause. Dr. Schacht a short time later assumed the offensive by reinstating a Reichsbank official who had been removed from his post and sent to a concentration camp through Goebbels' influence. That Goebbels will long permit this defiance to go without reprisal cannot be expected, though Schacht's noteworthy success, against great odds, in conducting Germany's economic affairs seems to make him immune from removal from office.

Meanwhile, the German masses, though they may largely disapprove the excesses of the radical Nazis, must remain silent. Hitler cannily keeps aloof from the tumult, taking no sides, and retains his position as popular idol. The radicals, by virtue of the force at their command, are in the saddle. But the irresistible though slow-moving forces of economic attrition are on Dr. Schacht's side as he counsels moderation and saner policies.

THE BALLOT—NOT THE BULLET.

The assassin's fatal attack upon Senator Huey Long is condemned, without a whisper of dissent. It was unexpected, too, notwithstanding Mr. Long had told, on the floor of the Senate, of a plot to kill him; notwithstanding, further, that, as far as public knowledge goes, he was the only Senator in the country's history who employed a bodyguard.

That the man was a unique phenomenon in our political life is a fact of acknowledged gravity. Cities have had bosses whose nod was the law. Party machines, entrenched in state capitals, have operated public affairs as invisible interests directed. But bosses and machines have made a pretense, at least, of complying with constitutional requirements and legislative methods. Not so with Senator Long. He reduced the Legislature of Louisiana to a body without will or judgment of its own. He wrote the bills, which were rushed through without debate or discussion. He destroyed representative government in Louisiana, brushed it aside with monarchical arrogance. He made himself the State more absolute than the tradition of Louis XIV.

The spectacle of the Senator commuting between Washington and Baton Rouge, an obstructionist in his Federal office, a Czar at home, was a problem at once ludicrous and sinister.

But we don't solve our political problems by assassination. The people of Louisiana, by the simple exercise of their rights as citizens, can have precisely the kind of government they want.

The ballot is the voice of authority and the means of redress in our democracy—not the bullet.

HOPE FOR HIKERS.

The rise of the automobile has pushed one of the finest of outdoor activities—hiking—into the background. Pavement has supplanted dirt roads in all directions from the cities. As Ralph E. Mooney said in his Community Forum broadcast Sunday: "If there's any place near St. Louis where you can set out for a breezy five-mile hike—or a good stiff 10 or 15 miles—without smelling gasoline and eating dust all the way, I don't know where it is."

Hiking is not dead, however. Trails for walking tours have been built in the East and South, and the hostel idea is gaining strength. Plans are pending for the St. Louis area, as well. They are being discussed as Federal projects, and by the State and city park authorities. Trail-building is an admirable form of work-relief, since virtually the whole cost is for labor. Here is the hiker's dream as presented by Mr. Mooney:

A trail leading westward over the hills of St. Louis County to Babler State Park on Wild Horse Creek road, where some 20 miles of foot-paths have already been built. A long trail, 50 miles or more, leading from the project, a national park near the lake at Alton Dam, along the Missouri highlands to Babler Park, sweeping in toward the city to Tilles Park near Ladue road and on south, to the new State park to be created near the Meramec River.

The speaker's purpose was to bespeak endorsement and support for such projects on the part of persons interested in hiking. Co-operation should be speedily forthcoming. Hiking is adapted to all ages and degrees of skill, requires no special equipment and pays dividends in health and recreation. If hikers and would-be hikers will let their wants be known, there is a good chance that walk-ways will be built and their recreation will come into its own.

A SUPER-SCHROOGE.

Literature and drama are replete with hard-hearted landlords, villainous mortgage foreclosers and cold-blooded dispossessors. But few of them can compare, for outright deficiency in kindness, to State Representative Charles H. Weber of Cook County, Ill.

Castling about for some way to bring misery to the joyful, Weber has hit upon the idea of making prisoners in Illinois penal institutions, if they have funds, pay for the privilege of incarceration.

No tears come to his eyes at the thought of the veteran convict, looking forward to a life of security behind gray walls, suddenly evicted, with his few poor belongings, from the penitentiary for failure to pay his rent. Nor does he feel sympathy for the unfortunate fellow who must hide in the farthest corner of his cell in condemned room when he hears the knock, not of the hangman, but of the rent collector.

Schrooge at his best could never have devised such a scheme.

GIVING THE FARM ITS DUE.

Few farmers would think that business executives, occupying elaborate offices, would be interested in how much the clover hiller is worth, what the hay-rake inventories and how much it would cost to replace the henhouse. Doubtless these same men of the soil would wonder who besides themselves would care how much the cream and eggs brought last year, how much wears her hair and how many White Rock chicks she has to care for; that the proper rotation on a corn-hog farm is corn, corn, oats, grass (clover, alfalfa or soybeans), grass and then corn again; that two of the boys studied civil engineering at the state university and have left home, but that Elwood, who is planning a drove of pure-bred Durocs, is going to stay on the farm; that there will be a potluck supper at the school Friday night.

But farm folk are mistaken if they think such things interest only themselves. Ample proof is the fact that the editors of Fortune magazine, which sells for $1 a copy, have printed a 13-page article—"A Farm in Illinois"—about these very things, together with water colors by a British artist of the hired man shoveling silage in the feeding lot and harness hanging in the barn, diagrams and airplane views of the farm, and photographs of those who do the chores, lay the corn by, raise 4-H Club calves and eat home-packed sausage for breakfast. The result—the "true life" story of the 400-acre farm of George Wissmiller in Blue Mound Township, McLean County, Ill., with its wealth of understandingly presented detail—is a refreshing departure in periodical journalism. And it is a departure fully justified. No steel foundry, oil refinery, glass factory or paint plant can outrank the corn-land farm as a unit of American industry.

No official communique from the Excise Commission's office for several days would indicate, we suppose, that everybody along the tavern front is behaving himself.

A POOR POLITICAL ARGUMENT.

What Is International Justice?

Every nation's aims seem just to itself, but may violate rights of others, historian says; so arises the difficulty of achieving or even defining international justice, which the moral force of the League has been unable to do; only by developing the international mind, still remote, can peace be made secure, he concludes.

Robert McElroy, Professor of American History at Oxford, in Current History.

MEN do not fight because they prefer conflict to peace, but because they want something more than they want peace. Therefore the road to peace lies not in the signing of agreements to abstain from conflict, but in the discovery of better methods of securing the things for which men would otherwise fight.

When we study the declarations of present-day leaders of nations, the few who think for the many, we find clearly set forth a list of things for which their nations are willing to fight, most of them reasonable when properly understood.

Stanley Baldwin announced in Parliament on Nov. 1, 1934: "Not in any circumstances" would the British "accept a position which placed this country in an inferiority with regard to any air force which Germany might raise in the future." Japan not long ago declared that the 5-5.3 naval ratio, agreed upon at the Washington conference, is "no longer consistent with national dignity." "A Germany within the framework of European nations," said Gen. Goering recently, "can only be a Germany not subject to every nation conditions of peace and constructive."

And Hitler, the sole "representative" of the German nation, declared, on May 17, 1933: "Lack of possibilities of existence always has been, and always will be, the source of conflicts between peoples. . . . It is not wise to rob peoples of economic possibilities of existence, without taking into account that the human being is dependent upon them. . . . and exists as a factor demanding the right to live." His meaning is clear: "If you want international peace, you must allow to every nation conditions that will make peace safe for the peaceful; otherwise, they will cease to be peaceful."

In all these cases, the leaders insist that what they demand falls within the meaning of international justice. But vague terms are dangerous, and the term "international justice" is among the vaguest. Some 20 years ago, an American patriot society, seeking to define it, sent to the 10 leaders then generally acknowledged to be the most eminent in the nation, this question: "Will you give us, in 25 words, for publication, your definition of international justice?" From each came a prompt answer; but later from each came the confession: "I cannot define international justice."

Men trained from childhood to think of justice in terms purely personal or national cannot suddenly widen their viewpoints and think of it in terms of all the world. But until they learn so to think, it is vain to ask them to allow to every nation conditions of minimum and raise peace to a maximum.

Jefferson said that men had certain "unalienable rights," among which he specified the right "to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." For the protection of these rights, he said, "governments were instituted among men." Does international justice mean that there are similar rights of nations? If so, what government has been instituted among nations to protect them?

The League of Nations was designed for that purpose, if we accept literally Wilson's declaration: "Armed force is the background in this program, but it is in the background, and if the moral force of the world will not suffice, the physical force of the world shall." But recent events have proved that the moral force of the world has not sufficed to give international justice. All nations agree that this has been denied in China. Germany, too, insists that it has been denied to her. And Italy sees her right to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" threatened by nations which believe these are due to Ethiopia as well.

If the League of Nations is to be but a group of the agents of hungry nations seeking each its own ends, it will lighten the world's burdens not one featherweight. If the world is to be saved by union, it will be by a union that thinks in terms of international justice—or equity—not in terms of national gains. If the League cannot rise to this height, it will stand as another failure on the pathway of history.

Pascal wrote: "We must . . . put together justice and force; and therefore so dispose things that whatever is just is mighty, and whatever is mighty is just." The great obstacle to this beneficent union seems to be the universal adoration of the doctrine of the absolute sovereignty of the nation, a doctrine injected into modern political theory by no less a philosopher than Machiavelli. We scorn the philosopher, but enthroned his theory which makes the sovereign nation "a moral universe in itself, which can be subject to no transcendent moral law in its physical collisions with other representatives of its own species." Accepting that subtle poison in the name of patriotism, the sovereign nations have consented to the belief that a nation, as sovereign, can accept no limitations save its own will.

Peace with justice is the only lasting peace; but when each nation feels, and is free to deny justice in its dealings with other nations, there can be no lasting peace. In the moment of crisis, justice is denied with impunity; and at that moment another war is born. The world's future peace lies in the emergence of leaders wise enough to acknowledge a limit to the sovereignty of the nation and, for the sake of international justice, to refuse to cherish policies which mean poverty, starvation and, ultimately, desperate revolt, for those nations least strategically placed.

Elihu Root once declared: "The indispensable prerequisite of lasting peace is the creation of the international mind." At the present rate of progress (now in the wrong direction), how long will it take to create such a mind, one big enough to think in terms of even-handed justice to every nation and to every race?

At the opening of the American Revolution Patrick Henry said: "Henceforward there should be known among us no New England man, no Southerner, but all of us Americans." Since then, America has measurably succeeded in making an American mind out of myriad races and devotees of localism; and Great Britain by a similar process has raised a world commonwealth to the semblance of an English mind. These successes should encourage us to hope that an international mind, with international justice as its aim, can be created if we work for it diligently, and with enlightened self-interest.

Not the Way to Fight

From the New York Sun.

THERE is something particularly illogical about the proposal made at the New York State convention of the American Legion that the Communist party be banned from the ballot. If the Communist doctrine may be summed up as a belief that the Government should be overthrown, by force if necessary, it seems illogical that Communists should be deprived of their most peaceable form of protest.

Thoroughgoing Communists probably do not regard the privilege of the ballot as of first importance, because in their eyes the outlet for dissatisfaction that it offers may defer the day of violent overturn. Practically speaking, it might be said that to deprive Communists or sympathizers with Communism of their chance to express their opinions through the ballot would add to the strength of the party more than would the open opportunity to name candidates, campaign and vote just as Republicans, Democrats, Socialists and others do.

The fact that Communists do not appear to believe in majority rule should not be taken as an excuse to shake the American belief in the rule of the majority. The fact that Communists frequently take advantage of the emphysema or rumpus that a small minority can cause should not be taken as an excuse for upsetting the fundamental American rule of the toleration of minorities and the protection of their rights.

The minority that the Legion has in mind may seem to them a particularly abominable one, but logic would suggest that if one minority can be deprived of one right on one occasion, all minorities can as rightfully be deprived of all rights on all occasions.

The American Legion can oppose Communism, as the Sun does, in better and more effective ways than by putting its strength behind a proposal to deny the ballot to Communists and thus provide opportunity for fresh agitation.

RECORDS DISPROVE A FABLE

From the Detroit News.

THE records support the position of William S. Knudsen, executive vice-president of General Motors, who takes no stock in the fable that business has to be bad in a national campaign year. "I think there is more talk than anything else in the idea," he says.

The year 1834 showed a recession in bank clearings, but 1835 was worse. There was a slight slump in 1888, but it was confined to New York City, clearings being higher in the rest of the country. In both 1882 and 1886, clearings were higher than in the preceding year. In 1900, there was a slight drop, due again to New York alone. In 1904, there was a distinct loss of business; doubt that Theodore Roosevelt would be re-elected and that the Republican policies would be continued, so we must look elsewhere for the reasons. In 1908, clearings dropped, due to the 1907 currency panic. In the next five presidential years, they showed an increase. The decline in 1932 was due entirely to the depression.

Freight car loadings, another index, tell the same story. They gained in 1904, fell off in 1908, jumped in 1912, 1916 and 1920, fell off slightly in the midst of Coolidge prosperity in 1924, when bank clearings showed an increase, and in 1928 were almost equal to those of 1927.

The effect of a national political campaign on business is often talked about, but cause an election year is theoretically a period of uncertainty. The figures show, however, that the worrying is done by the politicians, not by the business men.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10. COL. FRANK KNOX's campaign for the Republican presidential nomination has reached the contribution-seeking stage. Letters have been received in Washington from friends of the Chicago newspaper publisher asking their friends to help finance his drive.

Considered most significant is the fact that the senders are known Hooverites.

The existence of a tie-up between Knox and Hoover has been strongly suspected for some time, especially since the Chicagoan visited the former President in his home in Palo Alto.

Just before Congress adjourned, a story went around the Senate Republican cloakroom that at this Palo Alto meeting Hoover agreed to throw his support to Knox in exchange for a promise to have the naming of two members of Knox's Cabinet if elected—Secretary of State and Secretary of the Treasury.

The name of Ogden L. Mills, strong-arm of the Hoover regime, was associated with the Treasury post.

Political Errors.

THE other day Brain Truster Ben Cohen received a formal invitation to become a member of the violently anti-administration American Liberty League.

Among those who extended the invitation were Irene du Pont, John J. Raskob, James W. Wadsworth, wealthy Republican Representative from New York, and John W. Davis, J. P. Morgan & Co. attorney.

Most of Cohen's time in the last two years has been spent in molding legislation aimed against these gentlemen.

Now comes one of Huey Long's Share-the-Wealth clubs with an invitation to J. P. Morgan, $36,000-a-year executive director of the American Liberty League, to enroll in its ranks.

An assistant of Shouse expressed confidence that this was a "clerical error."

When he first became secretary to Federal Relief he was given a file of letters to answer. Important letters, from Governors and

When he came to work again in the morning, he found the room had been cleaned and the letters destroyed.

He was dismayed, horrified. He was positive he would be fired.

But days passed and nothing happened. Nothing ever happened. He never heard from any of the letter writers.

That experience gave McClure an idea. Silent treatment, he says, settles many an issue.

General Johnson's Article

"Will Business Believe That Our White Rabbits Go Out With the White Rabbits?"

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON, FRENCH LICK, Ind., Sept. 10.

OUR big little news items: Morgenthau is going to Europe. That's where he could stabilize money on a gold basis. Morgenthau wants to balance the budget. More power to that.

Wholesale spending agencies are to be abolished by the Budget Bureau. No more dishing it out with a steam shovel.

Roy Howard writes the President that business has been frightened by white rabbits of legislative experimentation and needs a breathing spell based on a strong statement that orderliness of government is not revolution in disguise.

The President replies that his drastic program of reform and recovery is now complete. That means no more white rabbits. Repeating Mr. Howard's own words, the President gave the precise assurance asked.

It is all to the good. For six months this column has begged for an end of the white rabbits and clear restatement of the original New Deal. It has kept at it to the point of being tedious. It has insisted that, if the country can now be confidently convinced that this really is the course of this administration, nothing can prevent the very substantial and widespread recovery which the President says he now expects.

There is yet one thing more. Government is still infested with the young red men whose sayings and doings have given business these jitters. They are the ambitious experimenters whose reputed association with Felix Frankfurter caused them to be called "happy hot dogs."

The one doubt which remains to hamper recovery is: Will business believe that our white rabbit days are over? It will if the happy hot dogs go out with the white rabbits.

BRIDES GET FIRST PICK OF LOW-COST HOMES

Renting of Apartments at Neighborhood Gardens Gets Under Way.

Bargain-seeking brides got first choice in renting the lower-priced apartments of Neighborhood Gardens, housing development at Seventh, Eighth, Biddle and O'Fallon streets, which will be ready next Monday for 70 of the 252 families it is to hold ultimately.

Before noon yesterday, the first day of public inspection, the eight three-room units priced at $18 a month rental were taken, and only two or three at $21 remained. There will be more of each class when the rest of the Gardens is opened for occupancy. The larger efficiency units, priced at $27.50, and the four-room and five-room units, which are priced at $34.75 and $36.75, moved more slowly, but J. A. Wolf, manager, expects to dispose of them as the week progresses.

Newlyweds, or young parents with a baby or two, signed most of the lower-priced leases. Exceptions were two elderly couples, whose children are grown and married. The applicants came, so far as shown by Wolf's data, mostly from North and South St. Louis. Some of the older visitors, inquiring about the larger apartments, once lived in the downtown region, and wish to return there for convenience and saving in carfare.

Rules in Three Languages. Application blanks were given to all callers, except some who to the near neighborhood, who obviously were there to look about, not to rent quarters. Rules and regulations were distributed, and copies in Italian, Yiddish and Polish were on hand, but most of the early renters spoke and read English.

The first bachelor girls listed were two sisters, employed in a downtown restaurant, and glad of the opportunity to live within walking distance of their jobs.

Three temporarily furnished apartments, on the Eighth street side of the Gardens, are being furnished, and the furniture, none of it high-priced, is there only to show what can be done in furnishing the apartments. A few pictures are on the walls, and the prospects are told that any pictures they wish to put up will be placed by the management; the tenants must not drive nails in the walls. The walls are decorated with washable paint in light shades, and the floors are of mastic asphalt, which will take, but does not require, rugs.

Questions Renters Must Answer. The application blanks list questions as to the applicants' nationality, religion, previous address, rent previously paid, and accommodations obtained. There also is an amount previously paid for fuel, gas and electricity. At the Gardens, all rentals include heat, hot and cold water, cooking and laundry gas, and electric connections for washing machines. Electric light current is not included.

Applicants must list the names and ages of all persons who are to live in the household, with the place of employment of those employed. Rents will be collected twice a month. References, and a cash deposit of $10 are required, the money to be applied on the rent, or returned if no deal is made.

The Gardens, sponsored by the Neighborhood Association, were built with a $640,000 Federal loan, which is to be repaid, and $102,000 invested by officers of the association.

TESTIMONY AT CHURCH TRIAL OF WHEATON COLLEGE HEAD

Technically Out of Way, Witnesses Are Called Against Dr. Buswell.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—Counsel for the Presbyterian Church called witnesses today at the trial of Dr. J. Oliver Buswell, president of Wheaton College, on charges of rebellion against a mandate of the general assembly of the church.

Dr. Buswell went to trial several weeks ago, but after his counsel brought out that the charges against him had not been read before the Presbytery, proceedings were halted. The charges were read yesterday and the Rev. Andrew C. Zenos, clerk of the Chicago Presbytery, ordered immediate resumption of the case. The charges were based on the development of an independent board of foreign missions by Dr. J. Graham Machen of Philadelphia. Dr. Buswell has said that Dr. Machen's followers will form a new church if the ecclesiastical courts rule against them.

FATHER COYLE, FORMER PASTOR OF OLD CATHEDRAL, DIES AT 88

He was pastor of the Old Cathedral nearly 30 years, and in 1915 became head of the Kirkwood parish. Jubilee ceremonies were held in 1923 to celebrate his fiftieth year in the priesthood. He resigned as active head of the church in 1930, and for the last four years was a patient in the hospital. He had no immediate relatives.

MRS. ROOSEVELT AT DETROIT SLUM CLEARANCE CEREMONY

Gives Signal for Razing of Building; Project Halted by Court Order.

DETROIT, Sept. 10.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt had a part in a ceremony which began Detroit's $6,000,000 slum clearance project yesterday. She gave the signal for demolition of the first of many buildings that will be razed to make way for low-cost, modern houses and apartments for the families of Negro workmen.

She watched as the driver of a truck pulled his throttle and heaved the cables which pulled down the first wall.

At almost the same instant, however, United States District Judge Arthur S. Tuttle affixed his signature to a court order bringing the project to a halt, at least temporarily. The order was granted on the plea of several property owners.

In an address Mrs. Roosevelt said that the slum clearance work "will mean much, not only to those immediately affected, but a great deal to the city and the country as a whole."

$450 A MONTH FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS AT WASHINGTON U.

Allotment by National Youth Administration Will Aid

The National Youth Administration has allotted about $450 a month to Washington University for aid to graduate students. Chancellor George R. Throop announced today. About 30 students will receive help from the fund this year, it was estimated by Dean Frank M. Dehast in charge of the fund.

In order to receive help, applicants must have received undergraduate degrees, be unable to secure employment, and must show actual need of financial assistance to continue their studies. The amount paid each student for graduate work will vary according to his needs, but will be sufficient to cover the cost of tuition, Dean Dehast said.

Projects on which students will be employed will include research work of all types, supervised by faculty members. No student will be required to work more than 30 hours a week or eight hours a day.

PENDING REPORT ON GRAIN CROPS CHECKS TRADING

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—Anticipation of the government September crop report to be issued after the close checked activity on the wheat pit today. A firm tone at Liverpool gave a little weight to the bull side of the market and prices showed fractional gains.

Further gains in the Winnipeg wheat market found response in an improved demand here. Winnipeg at one stage was up 1 1/4 above yesterday's close.

Profit taking and hedging held Chicago wheat in check early but offerings lightened later.

Wheat closed 1/4c off to 1/2c higher compared with previous finish, December 93 1/2c, and corn was 1/4c up, 1 1/2c, December 56 1/2c.

Provisions were higher, and but only a few were unchanged to 1/2c lower. Provisions were higher, and but only a few were unchanged to 1/2c lower.

The wheat market has a firm tone very early today, scattered selling on fractional bids being absorbed, and lower to 1/4c.

Attention was called to the fact that

Winnipeg displayed relatively more strength than did the Chicago market. With the United States government crop report due after the close, many traders here were inclined to hold commitment on the possibility that the official estimates might contain some surprising figures.

While September corn sagged, new crop corn deliveries moved higher, influenced by reports of delayed grain maturity in Iowa. Light frost was reported at one point in that State.

Oats held relatively steady.

Provisions advanced little change.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 17,000 bushels, corn 10,000 bushels and in corn 27,151,000 bushels and in corn 27,151,000 bushels.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 10.—Wheat and corn futures closed nominally steady today.

Winnipeg wheat opened 1/4c higher, the close was 1/4c lower to 1/2c higher.

Local wheat receipts, which were 39,000 bu., compared with 17,000 a week ago (three days), and 24,000 a year ago, included 16 cars local and 10 through. Corn receipts, which were 12,000 bu., compared with 58,000 a week ago (three days), and 18,000 a year ago, included five cars local and four through.

In the cash grain market today wheat was steady to 1c higher, corn and oats unchanged.

Some Anomalies That Interest Medical Men

Physical Peculiarities of "Freaks" Often Are Puzzling to Doctors.

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

THE best part of the San Diego Exposition, as it was the best part of the Chicago Fair, in my opinion, is Ripley's Believe It or Not Odditorium. There are certainly enough medical peculiarities here to keep a doctor interested for a long time.

I went around the show two or three times with different doctors, and we found that while we could explain some of the things, we simply could not explain others. What ever it is, the doctor interested in the people who are these exhibits think there is a trick of some kind and are astounded for that reason. But the doctor, while he can usually explain the oddities on anatomical grounds, is not less interested because he knows this explanation.

For instance, Mr. Alfred Langevin of Montreal, Canada, puts an eye-cup to his eye. To the end is attached a cigarette holder with a cigarette in it. With this arrangement still in his eye, he lights the cigarette, draws the smoke in through his eye and blows it out through his mouth. He then reverses the process, putting the cigarette in his mouth and blowing the smoke out through his eye. To another eye-cup a whistle is attached. He blows the whistle with his eye. To still another one, a small balloon is attached, and he inflates the balloon with his eye. The explanation is obvious enough to the doctor.

There is a small opening on the inner corner of the eye which is the entrance to a duct which goes into the nose. This so-called lacrymal duct carries away the secretion which moistens the surface of the eyeball. In order that eyes may wink smoothly, a considerable amount of this secretion is delivered to the eyeball all the time. There are diseases of the lacrymal duct in which it gets stopped up, resulting in a constant overflow of tears onto the face, a most uncomfortable and embarrassing condition.

In the case of Mr. Langevin, evidently he has the opposite, that is, the duct is dilated, and the secretion which he is going to blow the whistle with his eye, he closes his nostril, forcing the air out through the lacrymal duct into the eye.

How he got that way, I don't know. I know of no other similar case, and such a possibility is not mentioned in the medical books which I have consulted on the subject.

The most astounding of the Ripley oddities, to my mind, is still Anato Hayes. He has developed a complete control over his abdominal muscles so that he can force his abdominal organs up into his chest. The last time I discussed chest. A year ago, I suggested that he might have a diaphragmatic hernia. X-ray pictures show that he has not. He can also do the locate both collar bones at force his breast-bone end of his chest. I put my hand on the breastbone while he was doing this and can assure you it is a most uncanny feeling.

He has no explanation of this ability to do these things except that he feels his joints are largely cartilage. (This is his own explanation.) Replying to my question, he told me he started to do these things when he was very young, and naturally had kept doing them, and naturally his muscles are trained by habit to these acts. That is true with nearly all muscular and anatomical oddities.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Mrs. Carr: I AM a girl 17 years old and for the past year I have been going with a boy regularly. During this time he has been wonderful to me. Every cent he earned was spent for me and there was nothing he would not do for me, urging me all the time to "go steady." My reason for not doing so being that I cared more for someone else and the boy was out of town. I explained this, and asked him to wait until my friend returned so that I might be sure of myself.

The first boy agreed, for a while, then began complaining, which brought on fusses and the usual making-up. He gave me a beautiful bracelet and said I must never return it, even if we did break up. Now Mrs. Carr, I do not want to go steady because I am too young and because mother does not want me to. But the break has come, as he said he could not stand this. The thing that worries me is that he has, for the first time, turned to rather ordinary girls to go with and this hurt me more than all the rest because he isn't the type of boy to do that. Do you think my refusal has made him do this? I don't think he would go with me any more. My chief concern is to keep him from that kind of company. Can you help me? TROUBLED.

I have no doubt the young man grew hysterical and turned to that lame old system of making the girls feel tragic about causing a young man to "go to the dogs." This has worked well with many sympathetic, sentimental women. But, I am afraid it is either a gesture to try you out, or he is gratifying a long-cherished idea of trying out wicked ways, for which he has only needed some excuse.

Don't feel too down-hearted unless he starts the other old racket of "drinking himself to death." This last might prove disastrous to his position and health and render him an undesirable public character, with whom it would never be possible to "go steady" in case after due deliberation and experience you should make up your mind.

Dear Mrs. Carr: HOW many men are needed in a wedding party when there are three attendants for the bride? That is a matter of honor and two bridesmaids. What are the men called and what are their duties? BRIDE-TO-BE.

A best man and two ushers (they are not now called groomsmen). I would have to give the detailed list of their duties more space than I have in the column. So, if you will send me self-addressed, stamped envelope, I will mail you my little wedding booklet, "Guide for the Bride."

Dear Mrs. Carr: I T has been a long time since my husband has had work and meantime I have been ill and have had an operation; but now that I am feeling like myself again, I wish I had some kind of work I could do here at home; perhaps you can suggest as I know it would make me feel that life was different. My nerves get on edge of my own doing, and I have been sitting around so much, not able to do things, that sometimes I feel like a dummy.

And Mrs. Carr, do you know where I can get a book or books on astrology?

For what reason should a girl remove her wedding ring when she marries again?

I think you might find help in my "Occupations for Women," which take sometimes, only a part of your time and since the suggestions are varied, perhaps you may find just the work suited to the amount of strength you have to give to it. But I shall have to have the self-addressed stamped envelope to mail it to you.

If you can get to any of the libraries, you probably will find a book or books of some kind on astrology.

question of removing the wedding ring in these instances, is one of delicate sensibilities. Do you think it possible that the reminder might not be the happiest to the one you have chosen to marry the second time? Then too, the ties it represents no longer exist.

My dear Mrs. Carr: I AM 16 years old and somewhat taller than I should be and it is not to me that high heels make me look entirely too tall. What kind of heels should I wear to dances and on the street?

JUST TALL. The "built-up" heels of street shoes are all right for you and many of the smart street shoes now have wide flat heels. The newest evening sandals are remarkably low of heel and it happens that fashions, right now, lends aid to your needs.

Dear Mrs. Carr: I S there any place in St. Louis which offers courses in training for the position of hostess in a tea room? If not, could one get a correspondence course in this? X. Y. Z.

I know of no school here which has a special course in this training. There is one in Washington, D. C., where hotel and apartment house courses are given in fact, the training leans toward instruction in hotel management. Of course, I cannot give the name of this school in the column, but will try to help you out if you will send the request in to me, with a self-addressed and stamped envelope enclosed.

DAILY MAGAZINE FAMOUS SEA FOODS

The sea provides us prodigally with food of rare flavor. Choose only the freshest fish and do not overcook it

by FLORENCE A. PACKMAN

NATURE was indeed prodigal when she gave us the products of the sea. Infinite in variety, sea food provides endless scope in flavor. Two inflexible rules there are in fish cookery. Be sure that the fish is fresh and be careful not to overcook it. Fish tissues are so tender that they cook very quickly. Overcooking renders fish dry and tough. Seasonings should be subtle and light so that the delicate flavor of the fish will be enhanced rather than veiled. In general, fish require more salt than meat does, and is more appetizing when seasoned with paprika than with pepper.

Paris, loved city of gourmets, is noted for the rarity of its fish dishes. There are the incomparable Soles Marguery, Soles Colbert and Soles a la Bretonne, to name only a few of the wonderful sole dishes. Sole abounds in French and English waters, but is scarce in our own. Our flounders, especially the small ones, are similar enough, however, to be prepared in the same ways.

The French are very apt to combine dinner fish, such as sole and halibut, with shellfish. Fillets of sole, stuffed with shrimps and baked in white wine with herbs, leave little to be desired. Another happy inspiration is steamed sole served with pink lobster sauce.

Sole with Coral Lobster Sauce

- One small live female lobster.
- One slice onion.
- One stalk celery, chopped.
- Bay leaf.
- One sprig parsley.
- Few peppercorns.
- Eight fillets of sole or flounder.
- Five tablespoons butter.
- Three-fourths teaspoon salt.
- One-fourth teaspoon paprika.
- Three tablespoons all-purpose flour.
- One-half cup cream.
- Two egg yolks, well beaten.
- Few drops lemon juice.
- One-fourth pound mushrooms.

Plunge live lobster, head first, into boiling, salted water and cook 15 to 20 minutes. Remove tail and claws and cut into small pieces. Cover remaining meat and body bones with cold water, add onion, celery, bay leaf, parsley, peppercorns and simmer until only one cup of stock remains. Brush fillets with melted butter, sprinkle with salt and paprika. Steam for 10 minutes. Make a sauce by combining flour with remaining melted butter, seasoning with salt and paprika and slowly stirring in the cup of lobster stock until mixture becomes thick and smooth. Pour in cream; add egg yolks and lemon juice. Lastly, add lobster meat and enough coral rubbed through a sieve to give the desired color. Arrange fillets on platter, insert tip of lobster claw in each, pour lobster sauce around them and garnish with broiled mushroom caps. This makes four portions.

A shore dinner is the beau ideal to every fish lover. It is said to have originated at the famous Villapue's Inn in Sheepshead Bay, in the glamorous nineties, and was a great favorite with the social and sporting world who frequented there. Shore dinners are part and parcel of seaboard eating houses.

The shore dinner consists of three or four or more fish courses, with just enough crisp vegetables to set off the flavor of the sea.

After all, shore dinners and fish dinners need not be the monopoly of restaurants. In the Fish 'N' Chips Luncheon, fried lobster may be substituted for fried scallops. This is one of the most delicious ways of serving lobster and is a great favorite in New England.

Fried Lobster

- One boiled lobster.
- Salt.
- Paprika.
- Juice of one lemon.
- One-half cup bread crumbs.
- One egg, well beaten.
- Remove lobster meat from shell, tail and claws. Cut tail meat in quarters. Sprinkle with salt, paprika and lemon juice, dip in crumbs, then in egg, and again in crumbs. Fry in deep fat (350 degree F.) for two minutes. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve with sauce tartare. This recipe makes three portions.

Cucumber Butter

- One-fourth cup butter.
- One-half medium sided cucumber.
- Salt.
- One teaspoon lemon juice.
- Cream butter until soft. Chop cucumber very finely and drain. Combine with butter. Season to taste with salt and lemon juice. Place in refrigerator to chill and harden. This recipe makes three-fourths cup of sauce.

With the salmon, serve tiny new potatoes and green peas cooked together and dressed with cream and paprika.

Lobster Stew

- One boiled lobster (two pounds).
- Three tablespoons butter.
- One slice onion.
- One teaspoon salt.
- Paprika.
- Liver or coral (if desired).
- Cut lobster meat in small pieces and saute lightly in the butter. Do not brown. Scald milk with the onion. Remove onion and add lobster meat. Season with salt and paprika. If desired, for them to find themselves when they are lost. And sew the child's name and address and telephone number on a stout linen label that is firmly stitched into his shirt collar. It will help, too, if that label is sewed securely into every garment he wears to school.

Problems of Social Usage For Weddings

Checks or Money Never Displayed With Other Presents for Bride.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post: I HAVE included numerous checks, which I have received as wedding presents from relatives and old family friends, with my other wedding gifts, as otherwise my display will look very meager and the checks are very substantial ones—each given to me to buy definite items for our house?

Answer: I'm sorry, but to make a display of money is in worst taste, and checks are the same as money. The only thing you can do is to explain that John's or your Aunt Agatha's or Uncle Tom, or Mrs. Kindhart gave you a check to buy silver, or for your bedroom furniture, or for whatever you intend to use it. Or, if you want to, you might devise something, such as cutting out pictures of things similar to those you intend to get. Mount them on small cards and write under each picture "From Aunt Mary," "From Mrs. Neighbor," etc.

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been doing private nursing for a good many years. In my work I have met a great many people, and some of them have remained very faithfully "my patients." I'm going to be married and leaving my profession. Is there some way for me to tell these people personally as I would hate to have the registry office simply tell them, should they call for my services, "Oh she's married now."

Answer: I know of no better way to let them know than to send engraved wedding announcements to them.

Dear Mrs. Post: With the high cost of furniture and the price of a wedding trip, I really cannot afford to give a bachelor dinner before our wedding. Is this a serious breach of custom?

Answer: Not if you can't afford it—of course not. In this, as in all questions of party-giving, the best rule to follow is to do whatever you can, as well as you can, but not to worry about whatever you can't do.

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been asked to be my best friend's maid of honor and said yes before I realized that as such I may have obligations which I cannot fulfill. Our house is not large enough to ask friends to a shower and I haven't much money to spend. Just what are my duties?

Answer: You may pay for your own clothes and you should give her a wedding present, if possible, but there are no other duties exacted of you further than making yourself personally useful in whatever way you can. As I told the bridegroom in the foregoing letter, don't worry about what you are unable to do. However, you are expected to be prompt at the rehearsal and to be at the house early on the day of the wedding.

In commenting on the passing of Will Rogers the editorial writers slipped out of character long enough to describe him as a "wise-cracker," and for the first time—employed that term without contempt or depreciation. It's a pity Will had to die to make that very serviceable expression respectable. . . . Magistrate David Hirschfeld, who enticed more editorial criticism than any other local judge, announced his retirement from the bench, and complained that "Heaven is the only place where an honest, independent official is appreciated." . . . And as a conscientious judge, he'd have to rule that out as mere hearsay. . . . Dispatches from Moscow report that Soviet Union expedition has found a new island in the Arctic. Can't you just hear Admiral Byrd lamenting: "Migawd! I went to the wrong pole!"

The new Garbo picture at the Capitol is one of the Sad Swedes' swiftest. . . . Our idea of a moompitter to sit through twice in the same evening is "Top Hat." . . . Watching Fred Astaire's rat-a-tat-tapping, and his big-time tone and his natural pretending is cooly column about. . . . La Rogers, who was always an eye-ful to all of us when she was a nobody around here, has developed into such a pretty person. And her dancing shandon, chomm, etcetera is cooly honky-doo. . . . But one of us during her fox-trotting with Fred, wondered what the gals in the chorus kept thinking.

Edward J. O'Brien, who gathers up the "best short stories" every year, complains that there are too many dull "little" mags. . . . Harry Hansen reports that Mr. O'Brien wants fifth-rate work discouraged. . . . If most of the published stuff can be ranked second-rate, fifth-raters must be those who haven't been to school yet! . . . Somerset Maugham's line in "Moon and Sixpence" is something for the scrapbooks, to wit: "I had not yet learned how contradictory is human nature; how much pose there is in the sincere; how much baseness in the noble, nor how much goodness in the reprobate." . . . "Reminder: The French Casino's new show. . . . Intimates who witnessed the dress rehearsals insist it is better than that elegantly appointed spot's last big hit. . . . At any rate, even if we rated no pass, and had to pay our way in—the French Casino would still be the one place in town—we wouldn't want to miss out on budget permitting visiting only one night club. . . . The big secret of that rendezvous' great success isn't the excellent cuisine or attractions there. . . . Its success is this: A fellow and his girl, who can't budget permit have as good a time there as those who can. . . . The same may be written of other Broadway popularized gay places—but unless they improve their brand of 1925 shows—one suspects that the French Casino will give them the same headache that it gave the Casino de Patee, the Manhattan and the Congress, which are now dark.

DAILY MAGAZINE

RADIO SWEETHEART

Anna Hears Carey and Is Depressed, but Makes a Discovery When She Meets Him.

CHAPTER TWENTY.

SIX weeks passed. The daily calendar on Leslie Cosgrove's desk slipped slowly from April into May. That month of April was the longest in his secretary's life.

She made a gallant effort, doing whatever anyone suggested, to fill up her time. There were movies and an occasional dance with Ralph Merriam, the law clerk at the office. She smiled brightly and learned the art of flattery. The girls at the office decided she had broken her engagement herself and Carey had married someone else in a fit of pique.

"Because listen," one of them said, "no one with a broken heart could possibly be as gay as she is."

They did not know that Anna was playing a game which did not cease from the time she opened her eyes in the morning until she closed them again at night—on some nights they did close.

It was at such times she rose and slipped into the living room to wait for Jimmy. More than once he found her huddled beside the gas grate, hollow eyed and disconsolate. On these occasions Jimmy never failed her. He would talk if she felt like talking or fix hot chocolate, which they would drink in companionable silence. Sometimes she would go to the kitchen herself before he came and have the little supper ready when he arrived. He was coming home earlier now. Never later than two o'clock.

"You know I'm getting so I'm disappointed if you aren't waiting for me," he said to her one night. "It's nice of you to say so, Jimmy. I don't know what I'd do without you. Just the knowledge that I don't have to lie in bed feeling sorry for myself means everything to me."

"You're doing fine," he reassured her. "You really do feel differently about it now, don't you, Anna?"

"About him, you mean?" Jimmy nodded.

"I don't know! Some of the time I do, then there are times when such a longing to see him sweeps over me I can't stand it!"

They did not always talk about Carey. Sometimes Jimmy told her about his own troubles with Mitzi. They seemed to be no nearer marriage than ever, yet Mitzi would fly into a rage if she suspected him of being interested in anyone else.

"She's insanely jealous," the radio announcer admitted.

"I don't see how she could be," he said. "You certainly give her no reason."

"Mitzi doesn't have to have reasons, you know. She is constantly accusing me of falling for one of the other artists. She even accuses me of being in love with you."

"That's good," Anna said, smiling over the rim of her cup. "You're singing the old song?"

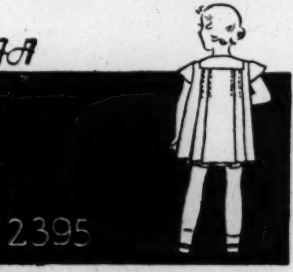

"Yes, isn't it? The crazy little idiot! It would serve her right if I did fall for someone else, but there's no danger."

After she had gone to bed she found herself remembering the conversation. Jimmy certainly had been frank about denying any interest in herself. She had felt a little hurt, not by what he had said so much, as the way he had said it. After all, even if they were "just friends" there was no reason for insisting upon it so vehemently. She knew it without being reminded of it all the time.

sumed. "I'm not interested. When you accused me of not loving you enough, you were right. I didn't really love you ever. It was just an infatuation—the sort of thing any inexperienced girl might feel for an attractive, successful man."

The moment she said this, Anna knew it was true. Carey knew it, and being too vain to risk further rebuff he rose saying, "That is your final decision?"

"It is," Anna declared, suppressing a desire to laugh.

No wonder Jimmy called him a "big palooka." He was the living image of a great artist who is continually being misunderstood as he said, "Good-by, then, my dear, and good luck!"

Anna was grateful that Auntie Steele didn't meet him on his way out. The talkative, little woman came home a little later, unconscious of the scene which had been acted in her quiet living room, but she had taken place in Anna's heart.

"Going to bed now, Anna?" Auntie Steele asked cheerfully.

"No, I think I'll wait for Jimmy. I haven't had a chance to talk to him for some time," Anna explained.

"That's a good idea, dear! If you want to make some sandwiches I bought some of that cheese he likes today. It is in the icebox."

She made the sandwiches and wrapped them in a damp cloth so they wouldn't dry out, then fixed the chocolate ready to reheat, and

False Pride An Indication Of Inferiority

By The Rev. J. F. Newton

RUSKIN was right: "Pride is the cause of our great mistakes." But he did not draw the line between true and false pride. Real pride has something to be proud of, false pride has not.

Real pride is a grateful sense of one's own worth, and it is always found in the strong, the wise, the skillful. A master is proud of his mastery, no matter in what field he may labor; and rightly so.

But he does not strut, he does not put on airs. He is not smug. Like charity, real pride "vaunteth not itself, doth not behave itself unseemly." On the contrary, it is modest, considerate, gentle.

The truly proud man is eager to help others less richly endowed, or less highly placed. He may be a teacher, a writer, an artist, proud of his work, proud of the skill which enables him to do it so well, but he never condescends, never tries to make others feel small.

False pride is the unfailing mark of inferiority. As some one has said, it is a moral wig worn to cover a bald spot on the soul. It is an unconscious hypocrisy, weakness hiding behind bluster.

The false-pride of those ill-equipped for the battle of life is a thing to excite pity, not rebuke. They are so sensitive, so quick to take offense when no offense is intended—so unhappy, trying to protect themselves with the fragile shield of a false vanity.

It is false pride that the Bible refers to when it says that "pride goeth before destruction and a haughty spirit before a fall." Of course true and false pride are mixed, and they make a mess.

A famous living poet—a man of undoubted genius—has a vanity so towering as to make him intolerable to his fellows. What a spectacle for gods and men—self-inflicted agony to madness.

"Why should the spirit of mortals be proud?" is the first line of a poem beloved by Lincoln, whose humility was so real.

Real pride is no more than respect for self and men. It is more desired than a just estimate of our real worth.

slipped into the bedroom long enough to smooth her hair.

It seemed ages since she and Jimmy had had one of their talks. She hoped he wouldn't be annoyed to find her waiting again, as she hadn't for almost two weeks.

If there were any doubt as to her welcome, it was dispelled by Jimmy's ready smile.

"Well, hello, Anna!" he cried. "How nice to find you up."

"Jimmy darling!" she cried, her big, blue eyes sparkling with irrepressible mirth. "For the last time I want to talk to you about my bereavement."

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Sept. 11. LD ideas, schemes and plans must today; also, deal with and seek the advice of those older. Be sure to mix the nimble temptation that will flirt with your better judgment in the P. M.; avoid friction with loved ones, too.

Mirrors. Masters of wisdom taught us that this entire world is in reverse, a mirror. Mercury, strange as it may seem, is the planet whose vibration actually does correspond with the metal mercury which is found on the face of mirrors. And Mercury, the planetary god of the ancients, was known as the reflector of reality down to where we can sense it.

Butter Icing. Good on a white layer cake. One cup butter, two and one-half cups confectioners' sugar, the yolk of one egg, coffee extract to taste. Cream butter, add beaten yolk of egg and then work in the sugar. Add enough coffee extract or strong black coffee to give desired flavor. Beat until consistency for spreading. If a chocolate flavor is preferred, substitute two squares of melted chocolate for the coffee.

Avoid serving cream sauces on vegetables, meat, fish, etc., too frequently. To most meat it spells monotony, as it is inclined to give much the same flavor to each dish.

Willy Nilly Goes With Christopher To See the Giant

By Mary Graham Bonner

"WELL," said the little man Willy Nilly, "I haven't any more backbone than an early morning mist after the sun gets up and is ready to shine, but I would like it if we could make some money."

"We need provisions other than the jam we have made and the vegetables we have ready to store away, and we only have five cents between all of us."

Willy Nilly's animal friends nodded.

"Caw, caw," said Christopher Columbus Crow, "come with me now so we can talk to the giant whom I met."

"I don't like the idea of a giant," said Sweet Face, the lamb.

"But you'll follow if we'll lead, won't you?" asked Christopher.

"Yes, baa, baa, I'll do that."

"Do get out your automobile. Two ways so you can get off at once. I don't want to miss this chance," urged Christopher.

Christopher Columbus Crow had discovered some way they could earn money.

As Willy Nilly was getting ready Christopher told the others a little about the giant and of the side-show to which he belonged. But soon they were ready to be off and the Puddle Muddlers called out:

"Hurry back as we want to know more!"

"You see," explained Christopher (as Willy Nilly drove off with the crow beside him to point the way), "they only have the giant and a stuffed owl with two heads in the side-show and they're not doing a good business. The owner, I believe, would welcome some new acts, and we'll be the new acts!"

A LIVELY center and then—lunchen at his favorite country club! Sounds grand, doesn't it? Well, all you have to do about it is to get him to ask you, because SONNENFELD'S Sport Shop (Fourth Floor) has solved the clothes problem. The answer is the "Evelyn" riding coat and sweater set. (Change your jodhpurs for a skirt and you're ready for luncheon!) It's of a knit fabric with solid sweater and coat of even check—in brown, green and rust. And only $7.98 a set. With it, you'll want the new Argentine jodhpurs—with the high waistband, you know—$3.98.

THE Little Ginger Bread Man is not only good to eat—he's good enough to lend his color to the newest Fall hosiery shade. You'll find Ginger brown in the sheer tissue chiffons—perfect for evenings and practical too! Price 69c, 89c and $1.00 at the NEUMODE HOSIERY STORES, 504 North Seventh or 807 Locust.

OF course, they've started signal practice but football is on the horizon, and if you're a football going girl you not only have to see the game but must look the part. Don't be discouraged by those must wear glasses to tell a 40-yard run from a fumble! ALOE'S glasses are not only scientific aids to clear vision—they're styled to be beauty aids as well. Remember it's 707 Olive or 537 N. Grand.

THEY must have brought it straight from Bagdad, because it's an Arabian Nights tale in modern language. Almost unbelievable, the gorgeousness of this Persian Lamb sweater coat we saw at GREENFIELD'S Fashion Salon, Third Floor. If you know your Persian Lamb, you'll see at once that this is one of the finest—in fact all the fur coats here are made of only the finest skins. This coat, in rich black, has the new note in sleeves—fullness at the elbow and tight at the wrist. The three-way collar looks smart no matter which way it's worn. The coat is lined with a novelty silk crepe and is quite as important for dress wear as it is for street wear. This is the first year GREENFIELD'S has shown fur coats, so dash in! Locust at Sixth.

THERE'S a world of knowledge in these! If you do believe it—you can even locate Ethiopia! You'll save yourself embarrassment when your young son asks you things you ought to know about and don't if you get him one of the new World Globes we saw at LAMBERT'S, 911-919.

WASHINGTON. An 8-inch globe with movable meridian for sonny's desk has an atlas, too, and priced just $4.95. The floor models have a Duncan-Phyllis base of walnut and they're priced just $9.75 up.

WHAT is it about new fall clothes that always makes you think something very mysteriously romantic and exciting is about to happen? We've been thinking that every Fall for years and years and nothing has ever happened—really! Just the same, we have been reassured out of this nice, dreamy mood.

Perfect Mate For Every

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

—My dear young ladies, there is no such person, male or female. There are several for each person who will seem perfect during the romantic, infatuation period, but except in poetry and fiction, this period is fairly brief and is succeeded—if it be real love—by a much finer period. For every person there are several million mates that are perfect enough for all practical human purposes. For a three-cent stamp to cover cost and self-addressed stamped envelope, I will send you a little booklet, "Marriage," mostly a discussion of heredity, but containing 30 tests of a good husband or good wife. If you pass these 30 tests you are near enough to perfection for any mate.

—This is a tough one! Some psychologists believe we should look at personality first, as a set of qualities you possess; and second, as a set of effects you produce on other people. In the second sense you have a different personality for each person you meet, because you affect each person differently. One thinks you stinky, another generous, one dishonest, another trustworthy; one lazy, another energetic.

Official Period of Mourning Proclaimed — Senator to Be Buried With Elaborate Ceremony in Lawn of Statehouse He Built.

By the Associated Press.
BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 11.—
Gov. O. K. Allen issued a proclamation today declaring a statewide period of mourning for Senator Huey P. Long, assassinated political dictator, from 1 p. m. today until 3:30 a. m. Friday, during which every State office in Louisiana will be closed.

Long's body lay in a magnificent casket of bronze, lined with mahogany, on a couch. The casket was the most expensive to be bought.
The cortege drove up to the main entrance of the Capitol at 2:35 p. m.
The casket was removed from the hearse a hushed silence came over the thousands who swarmed the plaza and grounds in front of the building.

The casket was so heavy it required 11 men to carry it up the hundred or more steps into the statehouse.
State police and special officers cleared a path 100 feet wide. The crowd was packed closely on both sides of the steps leading to the plaza and there was not an inch of space available outside the police lines.

Then trucks came bearing hundreds of floral tributes and wreaths. They went to the rear of the building where a large crew of attendants carried them to the rotunda.
All persons, except those officially connected with the arrangements were cleared from the rotunda.
Two news photographers—Willam S. Miller of the New Orleans Item and W. E. O'Haire, associated Press staff photographer—were taken into custody by State police shortly after the casket was carried to the rotunda. Sadler was released after officers took his camera. O'Haire was taken to the main floor by three officers, one of them carrying his camera. Sadler was taken in charge while taking a photograph of the casket, as it was being borne from the funeral home to the statehouse. It was not immediately known why O'Haire was taken into custody.

Burial Plot Chosen.
The grave will be in a sunken garden of the State House Park, a hundred yards from the capitol's front steps.
The funeral committee made the following announcement:
"We have selected as the burial site a place in the center of the sunken garden about midway between the State Capitol Building and the main building of the Highway Commission on the capitol grounds; the grave to be in the center. We have dedicated in perpetuity the grounds for a tomb.

"In making the selection we have,
to a large extent, considered the wishes of Mrs. Long, inasmuch as the major portion of his time for the last several years and she willingly deprived herself of his companionship in order that he might carry on his fight for the people."
Long's associates planned to make his funeral one of the most impressive in Louisiana's history.
Arrangements were under the direction of Gov. Allen.
The services will be in charge
